24 TAXI COMPANIES IN N. Y. PARALYZED BY CIO UNIT STRIKE

Walkout Called on Four Ships of the Eastern Steamship Line.

By the Associated Press.
The drivers in eight more companies of the Sunshine-Radio Taxicab System in New York city went out on strike yesterday, paralyzing the entire system with its total of 24 companies. The Transport Workers Union (CIO) was in charge.
The complete strike tied up 2,285 taxicabs and affected 4,345 men.
The rest of New York's 13,500 taxis were operating as usual and there was no shortage of transportation facilities.
On another labor front, in St. Louis, Milton N. Johnson, manager of the Ford Motor Company's St. Louis assembly plant, was quoted by a witness at a National Labor Relations Board hearing as having told "loyal" employees last April that a union would not be tolerated.
The witness, James F. Martin,

Jane Withers Sends Doll to Injured Girl

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 21.—(AP) For one broken leg, one doll. Ruth Herman, of Albany, N. Y., wrote Jane Withers she laughed so hard after seeing one of Jane's pictures she fell down a theater stairway and broke a leg. Ruth said she'd have to spend Christmas in a hospital and was pretty certain she wouldn't get the present she wanted, a doll.
So Jane sent Ruth a doll by air mail today.

said he attended a meeting where the Eastern Steamship Company was struck by the National Maritime Union.
"He told us," Martin testified, "that a union would not be tolerated, that the company was against any form of uprising."
In New York four steamers of the Eastern Steamship Company were struck by the National Maritime Union.
Joseph Curran, union organizer, said the strike was the outgrowth of a referendum vote by the crews because the company refused to reinstate the crew of the steamship St. John.
Warrants for the arrest of approximately 20 members of the crew of the Eastern Steamship Line's steamer Madison at Norfolk, Va., were sworn out as a result of their refusal to leave the ship after staging a sit-down strike.

Leaders Look Forward Jubilantly to Yule at Home

House leaders looked forward jubilantly to Christmas at home as the special session of Congress came to close yesterday. Shown wreathed in smiles above are, left to right, Representative Sam Rayburn, Democrat, Texas, majority leader; Speaker William B. Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama; Representative B. H. Snell, Republican, New York, minority leader, and Representative John O'Connor, Democrat, New York, chairman of the rules committee.

Georgia's Congressmen Puzzled Over What Will Be in Farm Bill

Return Home for Christmas Wondering How Constituents Will Be Affected; Most of Them Dissatisfied With Agricultural Measure in the House.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Members of the Georgia congressional session wondered as they hurried home for Christmas today exactly what had been accomplished by the special session.
Nothing out of the President's five-point program was enacted outright. Sharp differences existed between Senate and House drafts of the farm bill, and both it and the housing bill were sent to conference.
Until the conference committee report on the farm bill is complete, therefore, Georgians will have no way of knowing how farmers in their state will be affected by activities of the special session.
Delegation members described these conferees as the most powerful figures of the session. The compromise draft of a bill submitted by a conference committee is seldom rejected.

Most Georgians were frankly dissatisfied with the farm bill. In the house, three delegation members, Representatives Tarver, Pace and Peterson, voted against the bill on final roll call.
Senator George agreed to support the Senate bill as an emergency measure, but he declared a restricted crop was not the sound solution of farm problems. He suggested government purchase of surpluses.
Georgia house members were particularly concerned over the Boileau amendment, which would prohibit benefit payments to any farmer who diverts his cotton or tobacco land to commercial dairying or the growing of feed crops for commercial dairying.
They said, however, Chairman Jones, Democrat, Texas, had assured them the amendment would be modified or eliminated by conferees.
Can't Estimate Payments.
Georgians said they had no way of estimating how much farmers in their state would get in dollars and cents out of the farm program. The house bill set up no specific payments, and the Senate provided for a system of benefits which would vary according to the market price and the size of the surplus.
Only one Georgia representative, Robert Ramspeck, of the Atlanta district, favored the unsuccessful wage-hour bill, which the house, bolting the administration's program, voted to return to the labor committee.
Eight of his colleagues voted for the motion to recommit, which Ramspeck opposed.
They were Representatives Brown, Cox, Deen, Owen, Pace, Peterson, Tarver and Vinson. Representative Welchel was not recorded on the roll call.

ceded that since last Saturday, when the housing bill was passed there, it would be exceedingly difficult to produce a quorum.
Because the only action arranged for the week was the formality of sending the housing bill to conference, leaders assured numerous members that they might leave the city without fear of missing anything important.
So when the question of action on the housing bill came up, all factions obligingly shut their eyes to the fact that there was scarcely a quarter of a quorum in the chamber, and acted anyway.
The decision to adjourn today came as a surprise. The administration leadership had intended to stay in session until Thursday if necessary to complete conference action on the housing bill and send it to the White House, thus making it possible to say the session had produced one major enactment.
It was discovered today that several house members who must be included upon the housing conference committee had already left the city. That settled the matter, and word that adjournment by nightfall was expected spread quickly through the capitol.

REGENTS TO MEET
Will Join G. S. W. C. Celebration of 25th Year.
The State Board of Regents will hold its January meeting in Valdosta in connection with the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Georgia State Woman's College, January 14 and 15, it was announced yesterday.
Dr. Mary E. Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke College for 36 years, and Dr. Mildred C. Thompson, a native of Atlanta who is dean of Vassar College, will be among the distinguished educators who will participate in the observance. Dr. and Mrs. Richard H. Powell, of Athens, will be honor guests. Dr. Powell, dean of the coordinate college at Athens, was first president of the Georgia State Woman's College.

FIRE TRUCK FATALITY HELD 'UNAVOIDABLE'
ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 21.—(AP)—A coroner's jury returned a verdict of "unavoidable accident" today in the death of Assistant Fire Chief J. B. Farr.
Farr was crushed to death and four other firemen were injured in the wreck of an old pumper truck yesterday.
Coroner Bert L. Beusse said there was no doubt that the wreck was caused by a broken crank shaft.

Blind Member Sings After Adjournment
WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—The only blind member of Congress, Representative Dunn, Democrat, Pennsylvania, contributed the sole attempt to celebrate the house adjournment today.
When almost every member had left the chamber, Dunn ascended the speaker's rostrum, sang several stanzas of the Christmas carol, "O Come All Ye Faithful," and played a harmonica.

BERRY-TVA HEARING BROUGHT TO CLOSE

Decision in Marble Fight Rests With 3-Man Federal Commission.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Whether or not the government must pay Senator George L. Berry and others for leases on marble lands inundated by the Tennessee Valley Authority's Norris dam rested tonight with a three-man federal commission.
The two-week-old hearing on the value of the leases—and whether they were purchased in "good faith"—ended today with attorneys agreeing to file briefs and present their arguments early in January.
After that, the commission appointed by District Federal Judge George Taylor will study the evidence, inspect the marble lands, and then give its decision, probably the last of January.

BERRY DEFENDS STAND IN MARBLE FIGHT
WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Senator Berry, Democrat, Tennessee, issued tonight a statement defending his position in a condemnation proceeding brought by the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Berry said he issued the statement in reply to published criticisms of himself and associates by A. E. Morgan, TVA chairman.
Berry said none of the marble was sold for use in federal buildings.
"We sold to the fabricators and the record has so determined," the senator said.

HURLEY FORCED TO DECLINE INVITATION FROM RIVERS
BOSTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Convening of the state legislature January 5 today forced Governor Charles F. Hurley to decline an invitation from Governor Rivers, of Georgia, to attend Georgia's sesquicentennial celebration of its ratification of the constitution next January 1 and 2.
The cordial missive from the southern Governor was ample testimony, Governor Hurley said, that the feud of last summer between the two executives had ended.
The trouble started when Governor Hurley refused to permit rendition of a negro fugitive to Georgia on the ground the southern state's prison system was "inhuman."
Governor Rivers retorted by paroling a negro on condition he serve his parole in Massachusetts, but ended the controversy when he learned of the seriousness of Governor Hurley's daughter, Sally, who died a few weeks later.

Facial Expression Stops House Speech

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP) The Christmas spirit, and a "pained expression" on Speaker Bankhead's face moved Representative Ditter, Republican, Pennsylvania, today to cancel a speech.

Ditter had obtained consent to make the speech, but he said the look on the speaker's face meant it was "neither the time nor the place for an extended, controversial address."
Then, too, he said, he was mindful of the holiday spirit of peace and good will, of page boys whose thoughts dwell on Yuletide, and of galleries "who should be about better things than listening to controversial speeches."
So he decided merely to put his remarks in the Congressional Record.
"I am happy," Bankhead told him, "to be able to use a facial expression to such good advantage."

Vendors Report Brisk Fireworks Sale in Suburbs

Fireworks vendors have moved into the suburbs.
Barred by law from selling their celebration goods within Atlanta limits, undaunted vendors are doing brisk business just outside the city, a checkup revealed yesterday.
From the intersection of Lakewood avenue and Stewart avenue, at least 25 vendors have stands along Stewart avenue, extending into Hapeville itself, where ten vendors are doing business.
East Point also has its share, for the sale of fireworks is permitted in that community. College Park bans sale of firecrackers but permits shooting of them in backyards, and residents of that community were among the vendors' best customers yesterday.
Stands are made of wooden tables, folding tables, and wooden boxes. A few vendors sell fireworks in connection with produce stands.

PIERCE-ARROW ASK TO ORGANIZE AGAIN

Petition Brings Speculation Whether Farley Will Head Company.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP) The voluntary petition for reorganization filed in Buffalo today by the Pierce-Arrow Motor Corporation directed attention on the future of Postmaster General James A. Farley, who was slated to become head of the company after it had carried out plan of reorganization approved last September.
Under an arrangement tentatively agreed to by the Democratic national chairman late the summer, he was to become president of the Pierce-Arrow Company and, in addition to salary, was to receive 5,000 shares of the new stock outright and 500 more in a year.
The arrangement, it was understood at the time, was carried through by Cyrus Eaton, Cleveland capitalist. As part of recapitalization plan, approved September 2 by the stockholders, 2,000,000 shares of $1 par capital stock were to have been issued through the Cleveland house Otis & Company.
The application with the Securities and Exchange Commission was withdrawn after the break in the securities market, and the entire arrangement was left in abeyance.
The Marine-Midland banking group of New York has been interested financially in the business since that time.

STATE BOARD SUE OVER ROAD ROLLER

ay Asked for Equipment
Sold Butts County.

Suit was filed in Fulton superior court yesterday against members of the State Highway Board for $1,648.14, claimed to be the balance due on a road roller and other machinery sold to Butts county in 1933.

Arthur G. Powell, Max F. Goldstein and Charles S. Reid, members of a local law firm, brought the suit as assignors of the Atlanta Equipment Company, which sold the machinery.

The petition stated the highway board owed the Butts county commission more than $3,000 for highway repair and was holding payment until Butts county pays the petitioners. The court was asked to decree direct payment of the money to the petitioners.

WATER SIGN TELLS
'FIVE-YEAR PLAN'

City To Inform Atlantans of
'Pay-as-You-Go'
Program.

Plans to advertise to Atlantans the "pay-as-you-go" improvement program of the city water works department were being mapped by city officials yesterday.

Model of a 9 by 15-foot wooden sign, to be placed on the $195,000 sedimentation basin, now under construction, was placed in the hands of Mayor Hartsfield by Zode W. Smith, head of the city water works department, for final approval.

The sign calls attention to the water department's "five-year plan," authorized by the legislature last March and providing for allocation of 10 per cent of annual water receipts to finance a long-range program of improvement.

Under the "five-year plan" the water works department has mapped a program calling for a $1,150,000 expenditure, Smith said. Completion of the new sedimentation basin, a 10-month project, is expected by September, when an additional $40,000 worth of equipment will be added.

The wording of the sign selected to advertise the new sedimentation basin project follows:

"This is the first of the water works improvements under the five-year plan. Pay as you go. Atlanta has the best water."

RIGHT TO CHARTER WON BY DENTISTS

Court Denies an Injunction
Against Fifth District
Society of Georgia.

The Fifth District Dental Society of Georgia, composed of 86 dentists of this congressional district, received the right to incorporate yesterday, in spite of objections of the Georgia Dental Association.

The state group asked an injunction to prevent the proposed incorporation, contending it had a property right in the name to be used. The petition for injunction was filed by Dr. Paul McGee, president, and Dr. R. H. Murphy, secretary.

The petition admitted that the district group had been a part of the state organization until last May, when its charter was revoked.

Superior Court Judge John D. Humphries refused the injunction and dissolved a previously granted restraining order on the grounds that the state group had no property right in the name, since it had abandoned it when the charter was revoked.

The judge also ruled that since the state group was a voluntary, unincorporated body, it could not sue or be sued unless all of its members were parties. He stated Dr. McGee and Dr. Murphy could not act as representatives of such an organization.

As a result of yesterday's order, the district society may now receive the charter it asked for last August.

Building To Be Closed Only

Improvement of the Cyclorama, designed to dramatize the famous painting under special lighting effects, will get underway immediately, Mayor Hartsfield said yesterday, upon signing council's authorization of a $37,000 fund for the work.

Under direction of Burt Wellborn, sound proofing and lighting effects expert, the famous reproduction of "The Battle of Atlanta" will be worked over to become one of the south's main attractions for tourists, according to plans being formulated.

Actual work will start as soon as City Parks Manager George I. Simmons and contractors draw up methods of procedure. Work is expected to be completed by February 1, it was said, and the building housing the Cyclorama will be closed only during the holidays, to avoid inconveniencing visitors.

SANTA'S AIDES BUSY IN TOY SHOP HERE

Salvation Army Plans To Provide Toys for 6,000 Children.

Santa Claus' helpers are busy these days at the Salvation Army's toy shop, 233 Peachtree street, where parents of poor children come daily to select toys and dolls for the youngsters.

The Salvation Army, in co-operation with several Atlanta relief agencies, plans to care for at least 6,000 children in this manner.

A corps of workers is on hand at the toy shop to help parents choose toys that will bring joy on Christmas morning, and trained investigators see that no children who are being remembered by other groups are on the list.

Typical of the cases handled is that of "Peggy," a small girl who wrote to Governor Rivers, asking him, in effect, to use his influence with Santa Claus. The Governor replied to the child, as follows:

"I am always glad to hear from the children of Georgia, and I want you to know it is my hope that Santa Claus will remember you and your little sister and brothers."

"It is impossible for me to handle these matters myself, as much as I should like. I am passing your letter along to the Salvation Army in the hope they may be able to do something about it."

The Salvation Army is doing something about it.

O'HARA PAPER SOLD TO ITS COMPETITOR

Buyer Declares Publication of Providence Daily Will Continue.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 21.—(P)—The Providence Star-Tribune, thrown into temporary receivership three weeks ago by its owner, Walter E. O'Hara, Narragansett race track head, today was sold to the Providence Journal Company, its only competitor in this city.

The Journal Company, publisher of the Evening Bulletin and the Morning Journal, in a statement "to the people of Rhode Island" said publication of the Star-Tribune, an afternoon daily, would be continued.

However, the paper's new owner declared it would be glad to dispose of its interest "if adequately financed, independent operation of the Star-Tribune can be arranged through reputable Rhode Island ownership of whatever political complexion."

The company added it did not "contemplate" continuing publication of the Star-Tribune indefinitely under Journal ownership.

'Big Brothers' Including 'Little Brother' Receive Cups as Winners in Successful Drive

And here's a pair of Brothers. Big Brother Wiley Moore is presenting cup to "Little Brother" John Floyd Johnston Jr. At the left is J. Ed Peek and just behind Little Brother John Floyd Jr. is Mike Gilleland, who were on hand to congratulate the youngsters, and participate in the festive occasion. All that now remains is the "Big Brothers" charity ball to be held tonight.

EMPLOYERS TO PAY MORE TO HELP IDLE

Tax on Pay Rolls Increases to Three Per Cent in 1938.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(P)—Unemployment insurance will cost employers more after New Year's Day.

Officials of the Social Security Board said the tax on pay rolls will increase from 2 per cent in 1937 to 3 per cent in 1938.

This is the final increase in the pay roll tax, and 3 per cent will be standard rate of employer contributions in future years.

Officials would not predict how much more this added tax would mean to the fund for paying workers who are laid off, because the tax is based on pay rolls, business conditions and the amount of employment. They estimated 1938 receipts at more than $900,000,000.

REA APPROVES FUNDS FOR GEORGIA PROJECTS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(P)—The Rural Electrification Administration notified members of the Georgia congressional delegation today of approval of allocations for four REA projects in their state.

Senator Russell and Representative Vinson said the allocations were:

Irwin county, $7,000 to complete a $157,000 project; Upson county, $10,000 for house wiring and plumbing fixtures; Washington county, $20,000 for house wiring and plumbing fixtures; Jefferson county, $10,000 for house wiring and plumbing fixtures.

Teachers To Get Pre-Yule Salary; Rivers Signs Stabilization Fund Bill

advance but we all know that they would appreciate it."

The announcement followed a lengthy conference between the Governor, State Treasurer George B. Hamilton, Superintendent of Schools M. D. Collins and State Auditor Tom Wisdom.

Governor Rivers conferred last night with representatives of the Association of County Commissioners of Georgia to lay plans for obtaining revenues for the counties when the assembly reconvenes after the Christmas recess.

Work in Harmony.

No announcement was made at the conference, held at a downtown hotel, but it was said that the chief executive and the commissioners were working in close harmony, something which has not fully existed since the special session began.

It was understood the Governor and the commissioners had agreed to support several revenue measures which would supply funds for both the state and the counties, and that during the Christmas recess they would seek to obtain support for the bills.

The exact nature of the bills was not determined, but it was understood some of them already had been introduced and others were to be introduced during the first week in January.

Doubts Deadlock.

As the assembly began to grind out its work, Governor Rivers issued a statement in which he praised accomplishments thus far and added he saw no reason for a deadlock when the legislature reconvenes after Christmas.

He was asked by newspapermen to comment on a story in Sunday's editions of The Constitution which said he would be a candidate for re-election next summer. To this he replied, "I am not a candidate for any office at this time." The campaign is six months off.

The stabilization bill reached the governor's desk after the house, showing additional signs of harmony, agreed to a substitute to the house bill, passed 10 days ago.

The stabilization bill puts a 10 per cent "litter" on all allocated funds coming into the treasury except two cents of the gasoline tax money used for the common school equalization fund and for county road work.

Under an amendment the senate put on its substitute, the measure is effective only until January 1, 1940. Advocates said the bill would raise $1,000,000 or more next year, which will be used for emergency needs of various state departments.

Adjournment Rumor.
Rumors in legislative halls that a movement was under way to bring about sine die adjournment today instead of the voted holiday gained some momentum that George Sabados, of Dougherty, told the house:

"I have made a personal investigation and I can tell you that Speaker Roy Harris, whose name I heard mentioned in the rumors, has absolutely nothing to do with any alleged effort to stampee this house into a sine die adjournment Wednesday."

He expressed a belief the rumors were started to embarrass the speaker and other legislative leaders. Representative Key, of Jasper, called attention to the fact the Governor had signed the joint resolution recessing the assembly from December 22 to January 3.

The senate amended and passed a house bill designed to plug loopholes in the cigar and cigarette tax act. The house agreed to the amendments and the bill goes to the Governor.

Also passed by the senate was a house bill by Parker, of Colquitt, regulating building and loan associations. Amended, it must return to the house for concurrence.

No Yule Mileage.

The senate appropriations committee reconsidered former action and agreed with the house that legislators should receive pay during the holidays, but no mileage. The committee's action must be acted on by both houses today.

An important piece of legislation sent to a conference committee yesterday was the gross bill abolishing the flat $3 automobile license tag rate and establishing a sliding scale from $1.50 up. The house refused to agree to senate amendments.

The house rules committee late in the day set up a recommendation.

tion for special order of business today, putting in 10th place the "Martin Plan" for tax reorganization and observers said it was doubtful this bill would be taken up before the recess.

Vote Later Recess.

The senate meanwhile voted to recess for the Christmas holidays today at 6 p. m., instead of at 1 o'clock, as provided in a previous action.

The upper house is expected to concentrate today on the intangible tax bill passed by the house Monday. This is another major administration measure described by advocates as a "fundamental of tax revision."

The house passed about two-score permissive highway bills and half dozen general bills of local applications.

Delay Drug Action.

The senate postponed action until today on Senator Chason's bill to amend the drug law to require new preparations to be approved by the state chemist and Department of Health before being put on the market.

It approved a resolution authorizing per diem payments to President John B. Spivey and his aides for 10 days prior to convening of the special session and for five days after beginning of the Yule recess for work done on preparing legislation.

At an afternoon session the senate passed the following bills:

By Hardman, to require purchase of tax stamps and tax tags by the state purchasing department.

By Parker and Barlow, of Colquitt, defining as a livestock dealer anyone buying livestock for slaughter.

It tabled a bill by Pruett, of 10 mills except for retirement of Dahlonega, to limit county taxes to current debts.

A bill introduced in the senate by Thrasher, of Watkinsville, would prohibit members of the general assembly from holding any other state job during the terms for which they are elected.

to care for one entire family during this coming year was an Atlanta woman who asked that her subscription be entered merely as from "A Lady and Her Two Daughters."

Small Contributions.
Most heartening of all yesterday's responses, however, were those of the smaller contributors. Yesterday's receipts from those who gave less than $20 were the heaviest of any one day since this fund has been started. Should these continue as they are coming in now, this year's fund will be an assured success.

These small donors are the backbone of the fund. No one need feel that his dollar or part of a dollar is not necessary because he reads that someone has contributed a larger amount. Most of those larger amounts have been results of many small donations being pooled into one large fund.

The Constitution's Opportunity Fund is built largely of small donations. If your dollar or half-dollar cannot come in with those of some group, send it in individually to Hugh H. Trotti, treasurer of the Opportunity Fund, care The Constitution. Mr. Trotti will pool your gift with the small gifts of other Atlantans, and you will have the chance to contribute your share toward the comfort of some impoverished mother and her children.

That $300 gift made each year by the workers in the freight office of the Southern Railway is the result of many persons pooling together small donations. As a result of their individual generosity, they know that their money is helping to bring happiness to some unfortunate Atlanta family.

Money Paid in Full.

These Southern Railway workers, old friends of the Opportunity families, know that their money is paid in full to the families they are seeking to help.

They know that little children are being fed, clothed, sent to school, to summer camps and get the necessities of life because of this help.

They know, by experience, that the maximum of benefit is being given the families they seek to help.

They know that Southern Railway workers in the past have put several families on their feet and they are determined to continue this fine work.

Send in your contribution today to Hugh H. Trotti, treasurer of the Opportunity Fund, care The Constitution.

RIVERS SIGNS BILL FOR MORE PENSIONS

Pruett Act Extends Aid to Confederate Widows Wed Before 1920.

Governor Rivers late yesterday signed the Pruett bill extending Confederate pension privileges to widows who married veterans of the War Between the States prior to January 1, 1920. The previous law had limited payments to those who wed before January 1, 1881.

The measure, an enabling act by Senator J. F. Pruett, of Dahlonega, is the result of a constitutional amendment adopted by the Georgia electorate last June.

Pat Gillen, director of the Confederate division, state pension department, estimated today the act would add approximately 1,200 widows to the pension rolls and virtually double the pension payments. Each widow and veteran receives $30 monthly.

About 2,600 widows will receive pension checks in January, Gillen said, raising the 1938 pay roll to approximately $1,150,000.

December checks were sent to 232 ex-soldiers and 1,377 widows. Under the old law, the annual pension payments totaled $579,240, Gillen said.

BIG BROTHER DANCE TO BE HELD TONIGHT

Collection This Year May Exceed 1936, Chairman Bollinger Says.

The drive to assure the happiness of over 700 poor Atlanta families on Christmas Day will be climaxed tonight when Big Brothers give their annual charity ball in the Shrine mosque.

Advance ticket sales have continued to climb during the past week as more Atlantans realized the important part they should play in the campaign to drive poverty from Atlanta doors.

Faber Bollinger, recently appointed charity ball chairman, yesterday said if door sales tonight are good, the Big Brothers' work this year will easily exceed the collections in 1936.

Perry Bechtel and his men, well versed in the art of slide-swing rhythm, are the musicians.

"Come to the ball," says Big Brother Bollinger, "and while you're celebrating the coming of the year's greatest day, you can be doing a bit towards making it the greatest day for someone else."

Paper sales of The Constitution last Sunday, and the wax museum at 60 Peachtree, sponsored by Big Brothers and Atlanta Post No. 1, American Legion, have been sources of thousands of dollars collected by Big Brothers.

Mystery Digging Rouses Rumors Of Buried Riches

WOODMERE, N. Y., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Rumors of buried treasure on a huge, rambling estate where Arnold Rothstein, slain gambler, once operated an ultra-private golf club, came with the disclosure today of mysterious excavations.

Five years ago, Caretaker Rudolph Metzlar said, an iron safe and a strongbox were unearthed on the grounds, but the contents never became known to the public.

Since then, stories spread that Rothstein may have cached wealth there and his secret may have died with him.

Twice now, on successive Sundays, Metzlar said, the work of unknown diggers has been discovered in a tool shed adjacent to a garage where Rothstein once housed his luxurious cars.

Ten days ago Metzlar found a heavily padlocked door broken open and inside the shed was a neatly squared hole four feet wide and deep.

It was announced as officials of Savannah revealed plans for early appointment of a housing authority there and for seeking $1,500,000 federal funds for two projects.

Efforts to create a housing authority in Atlanta are being pushed by the Chamber of Commerce and business leaders at the present time.

Elbert P. Peabody, president of the National Exchange Bank of Augusta; Richard Reid, editor of the Catholic Bulletin; Lee Blum, businessman; the Rev. John E. Haines, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church; and E. C. Peters, president of Paine College, comprise Augusta's housing authority.

The United States Housing Authority will pass on Augusta's application for $1,000,000 on two slum clearance projects—one for whites and one for negroes. The city must guarantee 10 per cent of the capital cost and 20 per cent of the operating cost, the government supplying the remainder which would be amortized over a 60-year period.

PUMPKIN VINE ON SPREE.
The W. R. Ferguson family of Hale Center, Texas, claims a new record for raising pumpkins—and if not a new record, the crop of 50 pumpkins from one vine is some kind of a new mark.

Ferguson said some of the melons weighed as high as 25 pounds. The vine covered nearly an acre.

MEETINGS LAUNCH CROPPER PROGRAM

3 Farmers in Each of 35
Georgia Counties Eligible for Loans.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Farm supervisors, county agents, and committeemen from eight northeast Georgia counties gathered here today to discuss the Farm Security Administration's new farm tenant purchase program, provided in title 1 of the Bankhead-Jones act.

Three farmers from each of the 35 Georgia counties eligible for the $635,000 tenant loan program were recently appointed by Secretary Wallace to serve on committees to help select successful applicants.

The program is administered in this state by R. L. Vansant, state director of the Farm Security Administration.

Counties represented here today include Gwinnett, Hall, Hart, Jackson, Morgan, Greene, Wilkes and Burke. This was the first of five such meetings to be held over the state.

January 10 has been set as the closing date for which tenants, sharecroppers, and farm laborers in the 35 counties may apply for a loan to purchase a farm. Applications are made to the county farm supervisor.

SPYING ON LABOR HELD WIDESPREAD

U. S. Must Overcome Practice, Senate Group Says.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Certain corporations have spent $10,000,000 for spies, munitions and strike-breakers in the last three years, the senate committee estimated today.

In a report submitted to the senate by Senators LaFollette, Progressive, Wisconsin, and Thomas, Democrat, Utah, the committee said spying upon laboring men and their organizations was an almost universal practice in industry.

"Appropriate legislation" to end it is being prepared, the committee added.

"Government must overcome this spying practice or it will destroy every vestige of right which for 150 years we have thought our Constitution guarantees the average individual," the report said.

78-Year-Old Ohio Farmer Drops Dead.

A 78-year-old retired Ohio farmer died unexpectedly here last night as he was changing trains at the Terminal station en route to Florida for the winter. He was J. E. Evans, of Venedocia, Ohio.

The body will be taken to Ohio today by H. M. Patterson & Son.

YEAR'S SHORTEST DAY TO BE CLOUDY, COLDER

Winter's official debut today, which brings the shortest day of the year, will be accompanied by increasing cloudiness and followed by rain tonight or tomorrow, the weatherman predicted yesterday.

A low temperature reading of 30 degrees is predicted for this morning. The mercury yesterday ranged between 31 and 46 degrees.

The first day of winter began officially this morning at 22 minutes past midnight, despite the fact that Atlanta has been chilled more than a week ago by 9-degree weather.

The sun will reach the point farthest south of the equator today marking the winter solstice and the shortest day of the year. It will rise at 6:30 o'clock and set at 4:33 o'clock.

CONSTRUCTIVE TAX LEGISLATION

The classification tax bill for intangible property, passed by the house on Monday and now awaiting concurrent action by the senate, is a sound and constructive measure.

The bill provides for a fair and equitable tax on forms of property which, in the past, have largely been kept off the tax digest because the rate of levy was practically confiscatory.

It is estimated that the measure will bring a minimum of $1,000,000 annually in new revenue to the state. It will also result in keeping within the state many millions in property which is now being removed by its owners to other states because of the present unreasonable tax.

The bill is now before the senate and, in order to be enacted into law must pass that body today before adjournment. If the senate amends the bill the changes must go before a conference committee of both houses and must be accepted before the legislature adjourns tonight until after Christmas.

The bill provides that the new intangibles tax rate shall go into effect on January 1, therefore it must be finally enacted and signed by the Governor before that date. This means that the legislative processes must be completed before adjournment tonight.

This constructive measure represents the efforts of many years by leaders in tax reforms. If approved by the senate, as it is strongly indicated it will be, it will act as a potent factor towards placing Georgia's tax system on a more modern and equitable basis.

THE TUBERCULOSIS PUZZLE

There is something not yet explained in the death rate in the United States from pulmonary tuberculosis during the past few years. For no apparent reason, the progress achieved from 1910 through 1931 in the fight against this disease has not been maintained since the latter date, according to figures compiled by Frederick L. Hoffman, LL.D., consulting statistician of the Biochemical Research Foundation of the Franklin Institute at Philadelphia.

His records show that, in 1910, deaths from tuberculosis per 100,000 of population were 174.4, in 59 American cities representing a cross-section of the country. That death rate dropped steadily and rapidly until 1932, when the rate was 56.3 per 100,000. For the following two years the improvement was slight, reaching a low figure of 52.2 in 1934. In 1935 the rate increased to 53.2 and in 1936 advanced higher still to 54.5.

The death rate in different cities varied enormously, though this is largely accounted for through a tendency by many tubercular victims to seek climates believed curative of the disease. Thus the rate is high in Los Angeles and other cities of Southern California.

The rate in Atlanta for 1935 was 65.5 per 100,000 population, jumping to 78.1 in 1936. In August, however, the rate for 1935 was 133.9 and for 1936, 139.8. In Savannah the 1935 death rate was 119.0 and in 1936, 103.5.

High death rates in the south are attributed to tubercular patients who come to a milder climate seeking relief and to the negro population which is more susceptible to the disease than the white.

While Dr. Hoffman does not advance any theories as to the increased death rate, it appears likely that the nation's tubercular sufferers are now paying the price of poorer living conditions during the worst years of the depression, from 1929 to 1933.

Tuberculosis is a disease quickly affected by general conditions of life. Exposure and lack of proper food often means death to these unfortunate, when it would be nothing more than temporary inconvenience to the normally healthy individual.

Unless blame for the higher death rates can be laid upon the late depression, the problem becomes one calling for close investigation by the nation's scientists. The ground gained in the fight to wipe out this disease must not be lost.

The same situation as to the death rate exists in England where, it is pointed out by one puzzled scientist, the advancing mortality has occurred during a period when the people generally gave more attention to good health than ever before in history.

SOUTHERN SOLIDARITY

Kirke L. Simpson, veteran political writer of the Associated Press, writing from Washington, points out that the southern delegations in congress, voting together to large extent, have been the deciding factor in more than one issue during the special session and in the regular session of last summer.

"Southern solidarity," he writes, "has played an important role . . . but it is a solidarity unhitched to Democratic party leadership." Mr. Simpson points out that 88 southern members of the house, voting to recommit the wages and hours bill to committee, were responsible for the virtual defeat of that bill. Of the 23 southern Democrats who voted against the recommitment, he adds, most of them voted because of involvement with the party organization as leaders, whips, and committee chairmen.

Much credit for the defeat of the supreme court bill, at the regular session, is also given to the southerners who voted against it.

This southern opposition to measures sponsored by the administration does not indicate a revolt against the New Deal as a whole. Opposition to the wage-hour bill is rightly considered, in Washington, as based upon sectional grounds. This is true, but it is defensively sectional, aroused by the cross sectionalism in favor of the north and east, upon which the measure was originally based.

There is no criticism of the broad principles of the New Deal in the actions of the southern Democrats, nor certainly is there any turning away from President Roosevelt.

It is simply that the south, regardless of party dictation, holds true to the Democratic and economic ideals upon which this nation was founded and through which it has grown to greatness. Added to this fundamental consideration is the fact that southerners in congress, as true southerners everywhere, put the interests of their own people first when it becomes necessary to defend the south against threatened actions which would be unfair.

There is deep encouragement in the evidence that the south's representatives in the federal congress can still, through loyalty to their own people, avert unsound legislation and uphold the rights of their own section.

The situation proves that, despite the shifting political scene, a united south is still a mighty factor in national affairs.

RE-ENACT TITLE ONE

A large number of appeals to Georgia's two senators to support the re-enactment of Title One of the federal housing act, went to Washington Monday from Atlanta. The measure to put Title One again in force has passed the house and is now before the senate.

Title One provides for loans for repairs to homes and business establishments, permitting the borrower to repay over a period of five years at five per cent interest. When the clause was in effect some years ago it resulted in millions of dollars worth of construction activity and it is believed that, by putting it into effect again, similar results would be achieved.

President Roosevelt has appealed to congress to modify the requirements for construction loans under Title Two of the federal housing act, which applies only to new construction or to the refinancing of mortgages on older property. The object sought in this lightening of loan requirements is to bring about new activity in the construction industry and its multitudinous allied interests. Undoubtedly re-enactment of Title One would have a similar effect and would prove an important factor in the lessening of unemployment and the encouragement of business activity all over the nation.

It is reported there is some opposition to the proposal in the senate. It is difficult to understand upon what grounds such opposition can be logically based.

Both Senator George and Senator Russell have indicated they will support the measure and it is believed, with other sections following a similar course to that pursued by the local leaders who urged passage of the bill, that it will be enacted with little difficulty.

Editorial of the Day

WHAT INCOME PARITY?

(From the Dallas Morning News.)

With the cost of living at the present index level, what should be the normal line by which to measure all other incomes and how far above and below this line should the incomes from the various trades and professions vary? It is a question with many complicating aspects, but Professor Harold F. Clark, of Teachers' College, Columbia University, has collected some factual data on present income parities that are interesting. He has found $1,350 to be the flat average of all American earned incomes derived from trades and professions. Table below shows the average amounts received as earned income by the various classifications, and the parity percentage, accepting $1,350 as a base line of 100:

Medicine	$4,850	359
Law	4,730	351
Engineering	4,410	328
Dentistry	4,170	309
Architecture	3,820	282
College teaching	3,050	226
Journalism	2,120	157
Library work	2,020	149
Ministry	1,980	146
Skilled trades	1,430	106
Public school teaching	1,350	100
Nursing	1,210	89
Unskilled labor	795	59
Farming	580	43
Farm labor	485	36

Seemingly accepting the law of supply and demand as the determining factor, Professor Clark advocates the training of youth so that there will be a shift of a greater portion of the gainfully occupied population into the higher bracket professions. In other words, if there were more physicians and fewer farm laborers, the disparity between incomes would be greater. Theorizing to this end, and affecting it, are different matters, of course. What should be the relationship of lowest to highest income bracket, as among these classifications? In Russia today, where intensive effort has attempted the leveling of income classifications, a farm worker draws about 200 rubles monthly, and a professional man gets as high as 2,000 rubles, but probably averages nearer 1,500—a ratio of 1 to 7. After all, this is not so far from the 1 to 10 found by Professor Clark. Possibly the real task ahead of society is the raising of the average standard of living by making more and better goods available to all of the brackets by more efficient production, rather than altering the ratios.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

LOUISIANA "MONKEY WRENCH" WASHINGTON, Dec. 21. Last Friday afternoon, Paddy Boland, the feisty, hard-working Pennsylvania congressman who serves the administration as Democratic whip of the house, was busy circulating through the house's fusty, pompous lobbies and corridors. The motion to recommit the New Deal's wage-hour bill in committee was soon to come up, and Mr. Boland was performing his appointed task of herding the boys into line.

The administration appeared to have a clear majority for keeping the bill alive, and Mr. Boland exuded a cheerful confidence to the friends who stopped him to get the latest news. And then one of the southern congressmen hurried up to Mr. Boland and warned him excitedly:

"There's something going on in the Louisiana delegation. I'm scared of it." The eight Louisiana members had been enthusiastic in their promises to support the wage-hour bill. Their support was essential to victory. Mr. Boland was doubly horrified, therefore, when a hasty check of the Louisianians revealed extremely lukewarm feelings toward the measure. And his horror was justified an hour later when the vote was taken on sending the wage-hour bill back to committee. Seven of the Louisianians voted against the administration and for recommitment of the bill, while the eighth, Representative Overton Brooks, didn't vote at all.

POLITICAL PRESSURES The sudden switch of the Louisiana delegation was only the latest incident in a long demonstration of the variety, oddity and importance of political pressures. To Mr. Boland, House Democratic Leader Sam Rayburn and the other members of the administration high command on Capitol Hill, it was undoubtedly the most surprising, however.

Since the fortunate day when the New Deal withdrew its tax evasion suits against several members of the Louisiana junta of ex-Huey Long lieutenants, Louisiana politicians have supported the President pretty faithfully. The two most powerful of these lieutenants in the present are the showy Governor, Richard W. Leche, and the shrewd mayor of New Orleans, Robert S. Maestri. Both are old Long men, although neither was a victim of a tax evasion suit. Both have been friendly to the administration.

Governor Leche put in a word for the wage-hour bill with the Louisiana house members, and when Governor Leche puts in a word, the administration usually doesn't need to worry any more about the Louisiana votes. Unfortunately, Mayor Maestri's power is more consolidated and definite than Governor Leche's, and he was not unswerving.

Just what happened is a little difficult to disentangle. The mayor and the Governor have been eying one another irritably lately, as rivals for political supremacy will. Perhaps Mayor Maestri decided to prove that the Governor was not the only man in Louisiana who could put in a word with good effects. At any rate, on Friday afternoon, he talked on the telephone to a Louisiana member or so, and the switch occurred thereafter.

OTHER SAD LESSONS The Louisiana delegation accounted for eight of the ten changed votes which produced the anti-administration majority of 216 to 198. One more of the ten unexpected switchers was John M. Houston, a Kansas Democrat, who shared with Rene De Rouen, of the seventh Louisiana district, the distinction of having acted as an administration special lieutenant in the drive for the wage-hour bill.

Indeed, the whole roll call was one long tale of cruel disappointments and sad lessons in the unendability of human nature. For example, the ruthless and all-powerful New Jersey machine, Mayor Frank ("I Am the Law") Hague, of Jersey City, sent its congressmen in to vote against the wage-hour bill because of the mayor's recent bitter dispute with John L. Lewis and his Committee for Industrial Organization.

Mayor Hague evidently thought that a blow at the wage-hour bill would be a blow at Mr. Lewis. Mr. Lewis, however, did not care very deeply about the bill. He did endorse it handsomely and publicly, but he failed to put the heat on the boys. His lobbyists stayed downtown, and unless the lobbyists give some real and frightening meaning to public statements, congressmen rarely worry much about them.

ROLE OF WILLIAM GREEN Then there was William Green and his AFL. Mr. Green didn't like the wage-hour bill and said so. Mr. Green's statement might have been as ineffectual as Mr. Lewis's on the other side, but Mr. Green did put the heat on. Spurred on by his anti-New Deal backers on the AFL council, Big Bill Hatcher and John J. Frey, he persuaded the leaders of state federations to telegraph their congressmen. He commanded city labor circles to pass unfriendly resolutions. He sent his lobbyists swarming over Capitol Hill.

Mr. Green's stalwart efforts not only changed at least eight Democratic votes; the AFL stand also gave courage to vote against the wage-hour bill to the nervous Republicans from industrial districts. The administration gives Mr. Green rather bitter credit for reducing its forces to so low a point that the Louisiana switch meant disaster. It all goes to show how right Robert Burns was about the best laid plan of mice and men. As usual on an important roll call, the administration leaders had found a couple of opposition congressmen who had signified their willingness to change their mind at the last minute in return for a small potboiler from the New Deal storehouse of pap, patronage and projects. But when the roll call came, the situation was so bad that the leaders did not even bother with these friends in need.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air, Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there . . ."

But what have red-glaring rockets and bombs bursting in air to do with Christmas? The fireworks with which southerners are wont to celebrate at this time of year are a puzzle to the rest of the country. Southerners themselves are hard put to it to explain, although two explanations are generally offered. One is that the custom began with the War Between the States when a gunpowder-loving south, denied its customary July celebration of Christ's birth by its firecrackers at Christmas time instead. Another is that the custom reflects the Latin influence here, since the firing of cannon is a feature of religious feast days in Latin countries.

Among others who have protested the incongruity of Christmas gunpowder is Dr. R. N. Harper, of the Alabama Geological Survey. Since Dr. Harper and the University of Florida's Dr. Fred H. Heath have two of the keenest noses we know for collecting all manner of special information on neglected subjects, we nominate them a committee to increase the sum total of human knowledge with the real low-down on Christmas fireworks.

Second to none in outcry against the tariff wall Wisconsin has set up against a southern product with her prohibitory tax on oleomargarine, we can't help remembering that southern states themselves have employed their taxing powers to exclude the products of other states on occasion and that the thing is as uneconomic, unconstitutional and immoral when it is done with a southern accent as when it rolls its "r." What this country needs is more people who love great principles whether they have an interest at stake or not. People who love the constitution, civil liberties, states' rights, free trade, for their own sweet sakes and not merely because they have some personal advantage to push in a great principle's name.

There are the civil liberties, for example. They are being violated all over the country and especially in the south. And, except for a few patriotic newspaper editors, the only loud protests are from interested parties, from labor leaders and radicals who whose constitutional rights and liberties are being denied. The same parties who were so effective in defense of the supreme court and the con-

Christmas Carols

And Spirituals.

Last Friday night a few of us went to the chapel on Spelman campus and heard a program of choral singing by the combined glee clubs of Spelman College and M. Rehouse. Probably 70 or 75 voices of young negroes, joining in the renditions of some of the greatest Christmas carols ever written, with a few spirituals of their own race thrown in.

It was a thoroughly delightful experience, musically, and a revelation as to the sort of education going on in these institutions. Atlanta, you know, is the world's greatest center of higher education for negroes.

My only possible criticism of the program was that it was a shade too formal and sung with a trifle too much restraint. I mean there would have been greater thrill and finer emotional recollection if there had been more popular numbers sung and if the singing hadn't been quite so darned refined.

There's Hope

For America, Yet.

Every now and then, when a doubt has begun to arise as to whether there is enough of the ancient spirit upon which America grew great remaining to hold her great through the future, a little story comes along that renews the faith.

You know the ancient spirit to which I refer. The spirit which fought through any hardship or difficulty or privation which might come. The spirit that never knew it was licked. The spirit that looked for survival and success on its own independent strength and scorned any appeal to charity.

Well, that spirit still lives, thank God. A story from Cleveland supplies the proof.

Pride Is Food

For Heroes.

Here is the story: "Day after day he had trudged to school, carrying a small brown lunch bag under his arm.

"He was a tiny, ragged little boy.

"When the others took their lunches out to eat at noon, he went off by himself and opened his parcel, too. He never seemed to want to eat with anyone else.

"And then, one day, his teacher, curious, opened the lunch parcel. In it she found—nothing, but crumpled paper.

"Finally the whole story came out. At home there was often not enough money to buy food, for the family—let alone noon-time lunches.

"So, in his pride, he had brought along the paper-filled sack and pretended, off by himself, that he was eating lunch, like the rest.

"Needless to say, it was not long before the family was aided. "And now the little soldier of misfortune comes to school with his brown bag as before—but it is filled with nourishing food."

Editorial Reaction

To Life in the Open.

Milton Fleetwood, that cordial character of the Tribune-News of Cartersville, Ga., tells of a recent experience of his in an editorial paragraph or two.

He reports his reactions as follows: "Did you ever go out into the woods and spend the night under the stars, with few of the comforts, and none of the modern conveniences close to hand?"

"The past week end gave your editor such an opportunity, and we enjoyed it thoroughly, but our reaction to home comforts was all the more pronounced when we did get back—if we make ourselves plain enough to be thoroughly understood.

"It was a rich and rare experience—yes, it was—but the best part was in getting back—and finding that home is a mighty good place to stay for a fellow editor approaching the half-century mark, and who probably 'can't take it' like he once did, all because 'the ain't what he used to be' forty long years ago.

You're telling me, Milton!

Twenty-Five

Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Sunday, December 22, 1912:

The ousting of Atlanta's underdog mayor, once by the prospect of the new city administration "lifting the lid" in Manhattan avenue, are losing hope today because James G. Woodward, mayor-elect, has called off his contemplated fight on Carlos H. Mason, police commission chairman."

And Fifty

Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Thursday, December 22, 1887:

"Dr. John Hall says that Santa Claus is a myth and must go. But this myth will be doing a lively business long after such poor creatures as Dr. John Hall are dead."

Dr. Mary Walker.

Dr. Mary Walker, pioneer advocate of women's dress reform, was born in Oswego, N. Y., in 1832. She petitioned congress to enact a law permitting her to wear male attire, a half century before Katharine Hepburn was born, and it did so in recognition of her services during the War Between the States. She was the first woman physician in the world to hold a commission as army surgeon. Among other notable services she originated the postcard receipt for registered mail, which was adopted only after repeated urging. She also secured the passage of a law permitting senders to place their names and addresses on mail, thus saving thousands of packages and letters that would otherwise have gone astray. The Farley of that day opposed that reform.

It Isn't a Free Land If One Who Makes a Mistake Is Never Allowed to Correct It

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

There should be no two opinions about the right and wrong promiscuous divorce, for both the Pagan and the Christian have ample reason and authority to condemn it.

One who has no religious scruples is yet aware that the family is the unit and foundation of decent civilization. The influence and authority of both father and mother are needed for the proper upbringing of children, and only in a happy home do natural affection and duty provide the atmosphere necessary to develop in children the qualities that make them good citizens. To break up a home is an offense against the children and therefore against society.

The Christian need not depend on reason alone for guidance. Reminded that Moses allowed divorce, Jesus admitted as much but added: "Whoever shall put away his wife, and marry another, committeth adultery against her. And if a woman shall put away her husband, and be married to another, she committeth adultery." He made an exception only in case of unfaithfulness when the wrong of one party set the other free.

Paul, who is accepted as authority in other matters, gave ample instruction in this.

"Let not the wife depart from her husband," he wrote, "but as if she depart, let her remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her husband: and let not the husband put away his wife."

And again he wrote: "The wife is bound by the law as to her husband's life; but if her husband be dead, she is at liberty to be married to whom she will."

All of that is clear enough, but there is another side of the story that needs telling.

We are free men and women in a free land, and one who deliberately yet resentfully endures injustice and abuse and misery and humiliation is not free, but a slave to cruel custom and unjust law. And whatever the right or wrong of marrying again, one has a natural right to save his life, and that right must include escape from a situation that would destroy his body and soul.

Almost any misery is endurable if one has a loyal comrade to share the burden; but riches, fame and glory are alike worthless one finds at home only complaint and insult and smoldering hate and is denied the right to find elsewhere the comradeship that the poorest may enjoy.

If a marriage without love is evil, surely it becomes evil when love is gone. And if there must be a choice between evils, almost anything is better than allowing one person to doom another to lifelong, crushing degradation, and bringing up children in an atmosphere of shame and hate.

Atlanta Bar Association members last night elected John T. Dennis to its presidency for 1938. Balloting followed a banquet at the Atlanta Athletic Club. Dennis lives at 975 Briarwood.

He succeeds Stephens Mitchell, who served for 17 Collier N. W., and Thomas B. Branch of 85 Montgomery Ferry drive, who were elected first and second presidents respectively.

Feature of the dinner, which was attended by more than 100 Atlanta lawyers, was the unveiling of a portrait of the late H. M. Reid, judge of the city court of Atlanta, painted by Charles F. Naegele, from a photograph, will be presented by the bar association to Fulton county and will be in Judge Reid's old courtroom this morning.

Richard Smith, chairman of the board of regents of the University of Georgia, and member of the bar association, made the speech of introduction. He lauded the judge as one of the fairest men ever to sit on the bench in this county.

May this picture long serve as a reminder of a splendid gentleman and a great judge," Smith said. "May his memory stand as Economists cite number of reasons for the decline. As soon as the big corn crop was harvested, farmers, who anticipated prices of 40 to 45 cents a bushel, started feeding it to their livestock. Two months later they were rushing their cattle and swine into a declining market. As a result of those heavy receipts, prices now are reacting downward in the wholesale and retail markets.

Baby Sleeps On As Bus Crashes Into His Room

COHOES, N. Y., Dec. 21.—(P)—A 15-month-old baby slept soundly today as plaster and wreckage caused by a train-bus collision fell about his crib in a four-story brick building here.

Just beneath his window a bus skidded on a slippery street, collided with a moving commuter's train and hurtled into the building. The impact tore out the front wall of the room where the infant, Richard McCarty, was asleep.

The bus operator suffered lacerations, passengers of the train and occupants of the building were shaken. But Richard slept on as a portion of the wall toppled into his room.

Sanford Wise, 29, of Waterford, N. Y., who, Detective Sergeant Wilfred Delisle said, was the driver and only occupant of the bus, was taken to a hospital for treatment. The Delaware & Hudson train which figured in the accident moved on after a broken airline was patched.

Less than three hours later, fire swept the wrecked bus and threatened the building when flames from a blow torch ignited gasoline and oil spilled over the debris.

Upstairs, Richard paid no attention as firemen extinguished the flames. He was asleep again.

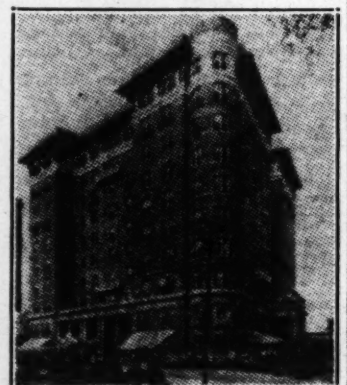

FIRE CHIEF WARNS ATLANTA'S SANTAS

'Watch Out for Whiskers When Smoking.'

Atlanta's Santa Clauses yesterday were warned by Fire Chief O. J. Parker to watch out for the whiskers when smoking and Mayor Hartsfield again, emphasized that fireworks anywhere in the city limits are banned.

"Avoid smoking while wearing inflammable whiskers and costumes, and keep away from fireplaces or other possible sources of ignition," Chief Parker warned. He advised use of noninflammable ornaments on Christmas trees and caution in choice of toys which might furnish fire hazards if carelessly handled.

The mayor pointed out that council has made explosion of firecrackers anywhere in the city a punishable offense. Council Monday amended its ordinance to allow wholesalers in the city to sell fireworks to retailers outside city limits.

GRAIN FIRE FOUGHT FOR THREE HOURS

Warehouse Blaze in Produce Row Spreads to Corn, Alfalfa and Hay.

Firemen battled a stubborn, smoldering grain fire more than three hours last night after quickly extinguishing flames which enveloped the tin warehouse of the Battle Grain Company, wholesalers, 11 A. B. & C. Produce Row.

Although the main blaze was under control, fire spread through the bales of hay, alfalfa, corn and grain. Firemen played streams of water on the grain inside the warehouse and removed much of the smoking hay and alfalfa to the streets for further soaking.

F. O. Battle, owner of the grain company, said at least an $8,000 stock was stored in the warehouse last night and that yesterday had been "one of the best business days in a long time." Fire Chief O. J. Parker estimated the damage would exceed "several hundred dollars."

Cause of the fire was undetermined. Flames were roaring from the doors and roof when firemen arrived, Chief Parker said. Fire inspectors will investigate today.

Firemen from companies 1, 3, 5 and 8 answered the alarm and Chief Parker directed the fire-fighting.

ATLANTA LOSES SUIT CHARGING CIO COST JOB

The Committee for Industrial Organization, the CIO, the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union and Local No. 122 of the ILGWU yesterday were dismissed as defendants in the $100,000 damage suit of Annie Mae Smith for loss of her job last August.

Several other defendants are named in the same suit and were not affected by the ruling. Superior Court Judge John D. Humphries ruled the organizations were incapable of being sued unless all their members were parties defendant, since they are voluntary, unincorporated bodies.

The suit ruled on was one of seven $100,000 suits brought by former women employees of the Saul-Kleinberg Company. Each of the women claimed they were dismissed at the instance of the three organizations and several individuals, and they were members in good standing of the organizations at the time of their dismissal.

School's Out at 11 Today For Atlanta's Students

Atlanta school children this morning will complete fall term classwork and be dismissed for the Christmas holidays at 11 o'clock, school officials said yesterday. The classwork, however, will be confined to Christmas celebrations in most of the city's schools.

Fulton and DeKalb county schools were closed for the year after Friday's sessions and Decatur city schools closed yesterday. All schools will reopen January 3, 1938.

$125,000 HOME FIRE TRAPS PAIR ON ROOF

Prominent Memphis Couple Are Rescued as Flames Wreck 'Samarkand.'

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 21.—(P)—Captain and Mrs. Guston T. Fitzhugh narrowly escaped with their lives today when fire wrecked "Samarkand," their luxurious, $125,000 home on Rose road, in exclusive Red Acres subdivision.

Tonight water dripped from blackened crystal chandeliers. Fine statues were smoke-smudged. Oil paintings were dulled with heat and darkened from smoke.

The distinguished, 71-year-old attorney, a leading layman of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, a one-time candidate for the United States senate, and a close friend of Josephus Daniels, ambassador to Mexico, and his wife, the former Josie Millsaps, daughter of the founder of Mississippi College, Jackson, Miss., were trapped for 40 minutes on a slippery narrow ledge on the frost-coated roof of their home.

"I got down on my hands and knees and groped through the smoke to the ladder," Mrs. Fitzhugh said. "Firemen helped us down." She believed the fire started when a boiler exploded.

Participating in the ceremonies will be the community choir, under direction of R. A. Carruth, and the Revs. Richard Potter, Mercer Williams, Lee Buise and W. H. Lunsford. Each child will receive a bag filled with gifts.

Gambling To Keep Agua Caliente Closed

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 21.—(P)—President Cardenas, of Mexico, has turned thumbs down "even on legal gambling," and so the pretentious resort of Agua Caliente just below the border will not reopen on Christmas Eve as planned, Baron Long, of the management, said today.

Long recently announced the casino and hotel would reopen December 24, but today he said he saw little hope of ever getting started again at the resort.

President Cardenas banned gambling three years ago. The hotel first closed in July, 1935.

INCOME PAYMENTS AID BUDGET HOPES

December Tax Collections Up to Estimates in First 20 Days.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(P)—Treasury officials said the budget picture brightened today because December income tax collections are coming up to estimates.

In the first 20 days of the month, they announced $467,782, 101 of income taxes were paid, compared with estimates of between $450,000,000 and $500,000,000 for the full month and $275,708,756 in the first 21 days of December, 1936. Every state contributed to the nearly 70 per cent increase over last year for this period.

Meanwhile, collections from all taxes for fiscal year crossed $3,000,000,000 mark indicating the first six months of the year will close on December 31 with nearly half of the $6,650,000,000 Mr. Roosevelt estimated would be collected for the complete year. At this time last year, only $2,000,000,000 had been collected.

March 15, the biggest tax date on the calendar, is yet ahead, and in spite of "recession" influences which may cut collections next year, the estimates are expected by the Treasury to hold up.

S. C. ALUMNI ASK TO RECONSIDER MEHRE FOR JOB

Junior Alumni Names Committee To Confer With School Head.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 21.—(P) A group of junior alumni of the University of South Carolina, formed here last night, asked for a reconsideration of the application of Harry Mehre, as head coach at the university.

Mehre, who recently resigned as head coach at the University of Georgia, came here last week and conferred with a special trustee committee, which failed to come to terms with him and retained Don C. McAllister as head football coach here, although releasing two of his assistants.

The newly-formed Junior Alumni Association named a committee to confer with President J. Rion McKissick, of the university, and present its recommendations.

The junior group announced it was "organizing in the best interest of the university" and that it "planned to work with the Senior Alumni Association, not cause a split in its ranks."

The association called another meeting for December 28 and invited representative alumni from all sections of the state.

Gorman Resigns Kentucky Post.

LEINGTON, Ky., Dec. 21.—(P) Tom Gorman, former Notre Dame center, announced today his resignation as an assistant to Head Football Coach Chet Wynne at the University of Kentucky. He has been line coach here two years.

He said he would return tomorrow to his home in Chicago to enter a law firm and that he probably was quitting coaching. Gorman, who after his graduation was an assistant to Elmer Layden at South Bend, said he planned to seek admission to the Illinois bar next year.

Gorman is the second member of the Wildcat coaching staff to resign. Porter Grant, end coach here four years, resigned a week ago to return to Auburn, his alma mater, as an assistant coach.

BREAK O'DAY!

ABOARD M. R. S. SAMARIA—(By Mail to the U. S.)—It was 2 o'clock in the afternoon so I went up to the ship's gymnasium to watch a workout by Bob Scally, the Scotch heavyweight who is returning from America where he remained for some fights, after having served as Tommy Farr's sparring mate. He sweated through some shadow boxing and rope work and then toiled at the weights. When it was done he stepped on the scales.

"My, goodness," he said, "I've gained almost a stone. My, my, goodness. What will Mr. Broadbribb say now?" (Mr. Broadbribb is Ted Broadbribb, the ex-manager of Tommy Farr. He managed the only heavyweight from England who has finished, in modern times, a fight in a perpendicular position. All the others finished horizontal.)

"He will say," said the Lady who is traveling with me, "you have been eating too much." "I jolly well have," said the pugilist, rubbing one cauliflower ear and wearing a puzzled look. "I jolly well have. You see," he said, "I am from Scotland and there is so much food and it all is free—well." There are just nine daily feedings aboard this ship. And, if that isn't enough, one can always manage to work in another snack by pressing a button and giving an order.

THE SCHEDULE.

The schedule is an impressive one. In fact, it looks very much as if they might have to use one of the derricks to land your old partner at Liverpool.

The schedule runs something like this:

7:30 A. M.—Tea and toast served in the stateroom.

(A later hour may be had on notice.)

8:10 A. M.—Breakfast in the dining room.

11 A. M.—Hot consomme and biscuits served in the lounge or on deck.

1:20 P. M.—Luncheon.

4 P. M.—Tea and cakes in the lounge. The great trays of cakes contain a wide variety.

7:30 P. M.—Dinner in the dining room.

9:30 P. M.—A plate of fruit arrives in each stateroom.

10 P. M.—Sandwiches in the smoking room.

10:30 P. M.—Late tea.

Your correspondent was doing very well with that schedule, cutting a few classes, so to speak, and trying to avoid the potatoes and bread and pastries. There is a Scotch pastry chef on board and only in Vienna and Scotland do they know how to cook pastry. They were particularly tempting at tea each afternoon. It was not until the Eccles cakes arrived that your correspondent's will power turned up its toes and died. There never was, I am afraid, very much of it anyhow. It couldn't take it, especially a good hard right. It was not the best will power in the world.

It had withstood many a temptation, however, and was doing rather well until the Eccles cake appeared on tray.

They name their dishes in England after the town that makes them best. And the Eccles cake was invented in the town of Eccles in Lancashire. It is round like a south Georgia biscuit and about that thick. But it is made of a pastry that melts. And in the center are currants. Well, there is no describing an Eccles cake. One has to eat one.

I keep thinking of Mr. Hugh Trotti, The Constitution's business manager. He would like Eccles cakes. He and I would make a perfect team. All of which explains why the chief engineer kept eyeing me and his derricks.

A PURSUIT RACE.

There was some exercise to keep down the old waistline. There was, of course, walking around the deck. Eight times makes a mile. But this becomes consumed with monotony and with various middle-aged females who wish to talk about the ship and its passengers. One old lady believed in spiritualism and I listened to her until at last I invented an escape for my earthly ectoplasm. I went down and talked with the Scots, who were the engineers. They believed in engines and oil.

Then, there was the pursuit race to escape the gentleman who wanted everyone to do charades. Once I did Old Black Joe. Lots of people guessed liver pills because of the bent position, and the head, bending low. No one guessed Old Black Joe.

The same gentleman wanted to do "Musical Chairs," and to play "Hunt the Thimble." Escaping him was a great sport and offered some exercise.

Then, there was the treasure hunt. The Lady who is traveling with me and I came in for place money. We would have won but the wife of a missionary, returning home from China, snatched the third clue out of my hands. This was in the gymnasium and the clue was hidden beneath the saddle of one of those mechanical horses such as the late Calvin Coolidge had in the White House. "I saw it first," she said, and snatched it out of my hands while her three small girls stood and said, "Yah, yah, mama saw it first." Well, anyhow, it was exercise.

THE GRAND CONCERT.

The night of the Grand Concert was fun because a comedy team from the crew put on two skits. Your old partner, sitting before a table placed just in front of a huge Union Jack and Old Glory, served as chairman.

There was one Irish lad, going home from Chicago after a visit to his brother, who sang. He started off on an Irish folk song and was scared to death. They were holding back the giggles. On the second song, gaining confidence, he wowed them with a grand song entitled, "While I Rocked My Baby to Sleep." It ended with sudden death and murder with the injured husband at home rocking his baby to sleep. But it wowed them.

The comedy team from the crew, a couple of cockneys, were great. They sang a couple of English music hall songs. One of them was entitled:

"Why Build a Wall 'Round a Graveyard?" The lines went something like this:

"Why build a wall 'round a graveyard, When nobody wants to go in? Why build a wall around a graveyard, When nobody there can go out?"

They did a song about the bridesmaid who was never a bride and at the close tossed the bouquet to a tall, handsome Canadian girl going out to Scotland to visit her brothers. I think the old superstition will come true. The pursuer told me she had only a one-way ticket.

Well, anyhow, there is exercise to be had. But nine meals a day is going it a little strong. Especially for one with a will power that turns up its toes in the face of an Eccles cake.

BEARS

May Be Good Team in Weak League; Tide Xmas Early.

By JACK TROY. EN ROUTE TO PASADENA WITH ALABAMA TEAM, Dec. 21.—Some of the Alabama players have confided this trip has given them a chance to do something they secretly have always wanted to do.

And it isn't so much that they are realizing the dream of all college players—a trip to Pasadena for the Rose Bowl game.

No, sir. The big kick came in being able to show a fine disregard for all packages marked, "Do not open until Christmas." Most of the boys had their Christmas "trees" before departing from Tuscaloosa. And the opportunity to open their presents virtually a week ahead of time represented something of a triumph, and a great trick on Saint Nick.

A pleasant treat is in store for them on Christmas Day at Pasadena. Carol singers from the churches will come around early to the Vista Del Arroyo and start the day off right.

The first opportunity for the players to leave the train and stretch their legs came in New Orleans. Alabama players to a man won't forget New Orleans. They barely escaped with their lives in the Tulane game.

NOT CROSSING BRIDGES. One found it strange upon leaving Birmingham for Tuscaloosa, that many of the supporters there aren't crossing any bridges before reaching them. In short, they will not be grievously disappointed if Alabama doesn't beat California.

That's a rather strange attitude for Birmingham folk. But the reason for it is the fact that, as aforementioned, this Alabama team continues to be underrated.

They're freely saying that this team is, perhaps, the weakest of the teams that has gone to the coast in the name of the Crimson Tide. This is a strange idea, indeed.

A number of the players on this team, in fact, a majority of them, have gone through two seasons of tough football undefeated. The only really close call they have had was in that tie game with Tennessee a season ago.

WHAT IS WEAK? So what is so very weak about a team that hasn't been defeated in two years? That's a very moot question.

And what, incidentally, is so hot about a team named California? Outside of the coast league, California played no teams of consequence. One was College of the Pacific. The other escapes memory right now. It's not important.

The fact of the matter is, according to many competent observers, that California's a pretty fair ball club in a rather weak league. This same California team was able to score, at last, upon the Georgia Tech subs. That was a year ago.

Warren Routs Swede Five, 46 to 24

By MELVIN PAZOL. Olson's Terrible Swedes looked just that last night at the new Warren arena in losing to the southern invitational champion Warren quintet, 46 to 24. Warren outplayed the Swedes in every department of the game.

Ed Copeland led the scoring with 18 points. Fred Bradford was next with 14, and then came Virlyn Moore with eight. Curtis, high scorer for the Swedes, totled seven points.

The visitors, billed as the "World's Traveling Champions," hardly were in the game in the first half. Bellamy, Warlick and Copeland did a neat job of guarding, and the host team with Warren leading, 20 to 4. Coach Joe Bean sent in the reserves after the regulars were safely in the lead late in the second half.

The two teams will meet again tonight at Macon. This will be the last game for Warren till next Tuesday when they meet Union College of Barbourville, Ky.

In a preliminary game, the Warren Reds defeated Georgia Power, 44-32. Bloodworth, Warren forward, led the scoring with 24 points.

Budges Will Ask Don to Turn Pro

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 21. (P)—Don Budge, world's greatest amateur tennis player, will turn professional next year if his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Budge, can influence him to do so.

Mrs. Budge, speaking for the family, said today Don's father would try to convince the dynamic redhead he should capitalize on his ability.

Mrs. Budge pointed out "neither Don nor we are any too well off and there seems no sense to pass up such an opportunity."

The decision, she said, would be entirely up to Don. It has been estimated he could earn something like $100,000 in two seasons. Young Budge has indicated he would like to defend the Davis cup at least once. He helped the United States team win it last summer.

Present Football Is Best, Says Walter Elcock, at Banquet.

By TOM McRAE. For those who are all the time talking about how much better football was played 20 or 30 years ago than now, it may be of interest to report that one of the best of the old-timers, an All-American, thinks the grid game is improving every year.

Walter B. Elcock, former All-American at Dartmouth College, who played in 1908, 1909, 1910 and 1911, said, "In my opinion the boys today play a much faster brand of football than we did a quarter of a century ago. I believe this is due in large measure to better coaching, which is improving every year."

Last night at the Dartmouth Club banquet at the Capital City Club Mr. Elcock recalled his grid experiences. He has kept his weight down since his football days. When he was a star tackle for the Big Green he weighed 190. Now his weight is around 205.

William H. McCarter, athletic director of Dartmouth, said that Dartmouth is increasing athletic relations with southern schools. It has already been arranged for the Big Green to play the University of Georgia in 1940 in New York and for a return game at Athens in 1941. Games are being planned with Sewanee.

After the banquet short talks were made by A. H. Sturgess, Charles F. Palmer, newly elected Chamber of Commerce president;

ALL 40 PLAYERS ON TEAM MAKE CALIFORNIA TRIP

Squad in Good Shape Thomas Plans 2 Scrimgames in Pasadena.

By JACK TROY. EN ROUTE TO PASADENA WITH ALABAMA TEAM, Dec. 21.—There was a remarkable lack of fanfare at the station in Tuscaloosa when the Alabama players boarded the train for the ride to Pasadena.

It was partly due, no doubt, to the fact that the students were away for the holidays. A part of the town's populace, down to the station, but there no tumult or shouting. It all startlingly matter-of-fact.

After all, when you make trip as often as does Alabama does become rather commonplace at that. But one was compelled to wonder just what the school would have been, say, had V. derbilt or Tech or some of southern school been showing for the tournament of Rose game. It would, no doubt, have been a bit terrific.

MOSLEY WON'T START. Coach Frank Thomas, admitted Herky Mosley is the best player he has ever had, will not start of starting the sophomore because of his kicking was particularly great against Georgia Tech.

"I have a failing of stick with the team that is winning," Thomas said. "A lot of people have asked me why I don't use Mosley. Well, that's the answer."

"I'll string along with the combination that has been winning," Thomas admitted this morning. That Joe Kilgore is a much better back than he ever gets credit for being. "He is a hard runner and a fine passer, and, as I say, a sort of climax player. He is poised and cool and capable of pulling games out of the fire."

He has done that, on several occasions, of course," Thomas declared. Kilgore also is the type of who seldom gets hurt. He plays

STIMSON OPPOSES NATIONAL VOTE TO DECLARE WAR

Proposal Would Destroy Existing Defense Plan, Says Ex-Secretary of State.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Henry L. Stimson, former secretary of state, expressed grave concern tonight over the success of a congressional petition forcing consideration in January of the Ludlow resolution to require a popular referendum before a foreign war could be declared.

The proposal, if adopted, "would not only revolutionize and destroy our existing plan for national defense," he said in a letter to the editor of the New York Times, but would "make any system of national defense much less effective if not almost impossible."

He said the resolution, proposing a constitutional amendment requiring a majority vote of the people before war could be declared except in event of an actual invasion, "entirely ignores the power and speed of modern air and naval attack as well as the fragility of our modern urban construction and economic organization."

But "the basic vice and poison of the Ludlow proposal," Stimson wrote, is that "it would set in motion a long process of deterioration and decay" and "the destructive effect... would be felt long before the moment of action."

Observing that the necessary signatures have been obtained in the house to force the resolution out of committee, the former state secretary in the Hoover cabinet said:

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Vice President Garner will be an honorary pallbearer at the funeral tomorrow of Charles S. Hayden, 57, executive secretary of the Democratic congressional committee, who died Sunday night at his Falls Church, Va., home.

Hayden had been correspondent for a number of newspapers in the middle west and south, and at the time of his death was a special writer for the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner.

AMERICANS WARNED TO QUIT TSINGTAO

Sunday to aid in the evacuation. Tension was so great that all stores were closed. A 6 o'clock curfew was clamped on the city because of outbreaks of looting. Japanese planes constantly were flying over, many so low that their bomb racks were visible.

The situation in South China also was considered extremely threatening. Japanese troops were attempting to cut the Canton-Kowloon railway to sever the southern metropolis from the interior. Three columns were reported closing in on Hangchow, 110 miles south and west of Shanghai. They were so close gunfire could be heard in the city.

In central China, 11,000 Japanese troops left the Nanking area for Shanghai, presumably to board transports for another objective.

Train Rescue Planned. Three hundred American and British women and children in Hankow, one of China's three provincial capitals, planned to leave for Hongkong tomorrow on an international train. They previously had tried to go to Shanghai up the Yangtze river, but had to turn

CHAMBERLAIN IN DEBATE ISSUES WARNING TO JAPAN

LONDON, Dec. 21.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain today cautioned Japan against being deceived by British patience and told her to prove her "determination and ability" to prevent further infringement of British rights in China.

He spoke in a foreign affairs debate in the house of commons during which Liberal Leader Sir Archibald Sinclair urged that Britain move more warships within range of China.

Sir Archibald also advocated that the British government "make it clear to the United States government that Britain will stand by them in any effort which the United States makes to defend the sanctity of the nine-power treaty."

"The prime minister told the house: 'We still are anxious to serve the cause of peace but it must not be thought that our desire for peace and patience under repeated provocation means we either are indifferent to our international relations or forgetful of our duty to protect British interests.'"

"More Than Words Demanded." He declared "it is time now for the Japanese government to show they are not unmindful of the rights and interests of foreigners and that their assurances and apologies meant something more than words."

The prime minister discussed in general terms the situations in China and Spain, the talks in Germany between Viscount Halifax, lord president of the council, and Chancellor Adolf Hitler; anti-British propaganda and the League of Nations.

He agreed with the opposition on three things: That Japan had not tried for a peaceful settlement of her conflict with China; that war was distasteful, and that cooperation with the United States was essential.

While the debate continued, Chamberlain went to Buckingham palace to see King George VI.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden concluded the five-hour debate with a declaration that "most important of all are relations of the British commonwealth with the United States."

"There is not and cannot be any question of a treaty or any question of entanglements," he said. "But there is a true community of outlook and it is that which can prove an invaluable asset in the maintenance of peace."

Eden also reiterated that Britain would not make a colonial deal with Germany at the expense of other nations.

TRANSFER OF SHIPS SEEN AS FLEET SECURITY MOVE SAN PEDRO, Cal., Dec. 21.—(AP) The transfer from San Diego to San Pedro of nine ships of destroyer squadron 11 was seen tonight by informed navy observers as a fleet security measure, although Admiral Arthur J. Hebburn, commander-in-chief, maintained his policy of silence.

"No further movement of either ships or planes is contemplated," said a spokesman for Admiral Hebburn, denying rumors 48 giant transoceanic patrol seaplanes of patrol 1 had received stand-by orders for extended flight operations.

Movements of the destroyer squadron today were interpreted as indicating the nine ships will alternate in maintaining a security patrol of the San Pedro channel and San Clemente island area. The island is a naval preserve for firing practice.

While five of the destroyers were at anchor today, including Squadron Commander Harry L. Pence's flagship, the other four apparently were on patrol.

The commander-in-chief's spokesman declared no disturbance of the holiday routine of battleships, cruisers and aircraft carriers, at anchor in the harbor here, is foreseen.

Landon's Pledge; President's Reply

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP) The text of Alf M. Landon's telegram to President Roosevelt, pledging co-operation in current international affairs, follows:

"Dear Mr. President:

"A year ago at the Gridiron dinner, in the spirit of the old American tradition that politics cease at the waters' edge, I pledged you co-operation and support in the difficult foreign situation confronting your administration."

"That is a grand principle and we must evidence our good faith in it. It means there must be no demagogic playing of politics at the expense of the country's unity in dangerous situations such as now confront us."

Renews Pledge. "Therefore, I want to renew my pledge, especially in view of the fact that so many members of congress, of both parties, seem to have forgotten this basic principle of American politics and by their actions help create the impression on foreign nations that they do not trust your administration of foreign affairs. They would hamstring your conduct of an extremely delicate foreign situation."

"These members are pursuing the same dangerous course followed by those members of the British parliament who early in 1914 gave the impression that England either would not or could not fight under any circumstances."

"I congratulate you on your firm 'no' to the proposed legislation that would take away the power of congress to declare. You and I both know the American people want peace, but they want peace that will enable us to maintain the respect of the other nations of the world."

ALF M. LANDON.

President Replies. The President's reply follows: "The White House, December 21, 1937."

"My Dear Governor Landon: 'The generous spirit of your telegram helps me to meet the problems which confront our country in the field of foreign relations during these troublous times.'"

"The pledge which you gave at the Gridiron dinner a year ago carried force because of the patriotic motive which prompted it. The renewal of that pledge not only strengthens the hand of the government but gives all of our citizens a good example."

"I believe that the overwhelming majority of our countrymen, regardless of politics, race, creed or color, from the days of Washington to this hour have desired to pursue the even tenor of their way at peace with all nations and all peoples."

Won't Close Eyes. "But throughout our long history we Americans have rejected every suggestion that ultimate peace can be assured by closing our eyes to the fact that whether we like it or not we are a part of a large world of other nations and peoples."

"As such we owe some measure of cooperation and even leadership in maintaining standards of conduct helpful to the ultimate goal of general peace."

POWER OFFICIALS, PRESIDENT CONFER

'Prudent Investment' Theory of Utility Property Valuation Discussed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—William H. Taylor, president of the Philadelphia Electric Company, said after a White House conference today that he had discussed the "prudent investment" theory of utility property valuation, and that he had discussed the theory of utility property valuation, and that he had discussed the theory of utility property valuation.

Taylor said that the group took up the prudent investment theory with the President in the light of a decision by Justice Brandeis made in the Southwestern Bell Telephone case 13 years ago.

"If the theory is applied now in the manner indicated by that Brandeis decision," he said, "we couldn't help but approve."

He did not go into details as to the distinction he made between the Brandeis application of the theory and what generally is meant by "prudent investment."

(Ordinarily that term is taken to mean evaluation of utilities properties for rate-making purposes on the basis of the actual investment in physical holdings without taking into consideration the replacement cost of the properties.)

First Scheduled. The conference was the first scheduled, since Wendell L. Willkie, president of Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, and Floyd L. Carlisle, chairman of Consolidated Edison and Niagara Hudson Power Company, called on the President a month ago.

Mr. Roosevelt's talks with Willkie and Carlisle outlined the issues to be settled in further meetings.

Mr. Roosevelt's talk with utility officials today was one of a series designed to reconcile differences between the administration and the industry and stimulate utilities construction.

Out of the conference with Taylor and Phillips came a substantial agreement, Mr. Roosevelt said, that the "prudent investment" theory of property valuations was a good rule-of-thumb to follow in the industry. He was speaking of valuations upon which rates are based.

Word spread through the capital, meanwhile, that Mr. Roosevelt had assured a group of his liberal senate supporters he would not compromise with the utilities on administration power policies nor abandon other major administration objectives.

Death Chamber Of Gas Proposed In Tattnell Bill

A proposal to abolish the electric chair, and to substitute administration of a lethal gas as Georgia's official capital punishment, was offered in the house yesterday by Representative Welsh, of Cobb county.

Welsh asserted death by gas, as now used in several states, is "more humane" than electrocution.

His bill was introduced in line with the series of bills now in the legislative mill to reorganize and reform the entire Georgia prison system. Welsh specified that the prison administration should procure and support a death chamber at the new prison in Tattnell.

MRS. MARY ADAIR FUNERAL IS HELD Was Fatally Burned When Clothes Ignited.

Services were conducted by the Rev. A. A. Cooper, and burial was in Oakland cemetery under the direction of Brandon-Bond-Condor Company.

Mrs. Adair, a lifelong resident of Atlanta, died at Grady hospital Sunday afternoon, several hours after she was burned. The accident occurred as she was dressing before the heater in her dining room.

She was the widow of James A. Adair, Confederate veteran, and had lived in the West End section more than 40 years.

Flush Kidneys of Acid and Poisons Gain in Health and Stop Getting Up Nights

When kidneys are clogged they become weak—the bladder is irritated—urine passage is scanty and smart and burns—sleep is restless and nightly visits to the bathroom are frequent.

The right safe harmless and inexpensive way to stop this trouble and restore healthy action to kidneys and bladder is to get from any druggist a 25-cent box of Gold Medal Hamlet Oil.

Remember also that other symptoms of kidney and bladder trouble are backache, leg cramps, puffiness, moist palms and nervousness.—(ad.)

Police Safeguard Yule Shoppers; Crime on Wane

Christmas shoppers in Atlanta are getting home with their purchases and money this year, Chief M. A. Hornsby declared yesterday.

"Holiday shoppers who chose Atlanta to make their purchases picked a city which criminals who specialize in preying on holiday crowds avoid," he said.

Crime has shown a marked decrease this season over the Christmas seasons of preceding years, and at least 15 attempted burglaries have been prevented when police captured the burglars, Hornsby declared.

Unusual for this season is the lack of pickpockets, Chief Hornsby said as he announced only one report of pickpockets has been made this week.

The Atlanta police department cancelled or refused all leave during the holiday season and took other precautions to protect shopping throngs, Chief Hornsby said.

Pictures of Delray Beach Home Adorn Mrs. Boyd's Greeting Cards

By Sally Forth.

PICTURES of Two Views, the name Mrs. Wallace Boyd gave her Florida home, adorn her Christmas greeting cards, and convey to her friends an intimate sight of her attractive residence recently erected at Delray Beach. Georgian architecture brings out the symmetrical lines of the house built of white plaster, roofed with white tile, shuttered with green blinds, and built 200 feet from the ocean boulevard. The front windows of the two-story house commands a superb view of the Atlantic ocean and the rear windows look out on a terraced patio and several hundred feet of velvety lawn dotted with tropical shrubbery and blooming plants.

Off-white walls and Venetian blinds in the hall, living and dining rooms offset the furniture and draperies which display the exquisite taste of the owner of Two Views.

Barrel chairs upholstered in yellow chintz flowered in dogwood, flank each side of the living room fireplace, and a seascape picture hangs above the white mantle. The love seat and davenport are done in chintz corded velvet, and the scarlet pillows on the davenport match the upholstery on the white upholstered chair.

A satinwood desk and chair occupy one end of the room, and alabaster lamps with white shades give the effective light. White wool rugs cover the floor and white brocaded cotton draperies hang at the French doors leading to the front terrace and the rear sun porch. Pillows made of aquamarine blue chintz, criss-crossed in white stripes, beautify the white chairs and comfortable seat on the sun porch which is glassed at one end as a protection from wind and rain.

Let's step across the hall and take a look at the dining room where green chintz draperies are flowered in magnolias, the center of the blossoms being tipped with red. Herein the satinwood furniture is of the Louis XV period and a lovely picture of fruits, vegetables and flowers, bordered with a green mat that blends with the color of the sea, hangs above the buffet. The chairs are upholstered in off-white leather and a green carpet covers the floor.

Three spacious boudoirs with private baths are on the second floor, one done in canary yellow, another in peach, and turquoise blue predominates in Mrs. Boyd's boudoir.

A BEAUTIFUL likeness of a blond and lovely Laura Maddox appeared on the society feature page of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat last Sunday, which marked recognition paid the young Atlantian for her visit there with her cousin, Eunice Holderness.

There has been a gay time on the calendar there for the visitor and her hostess for the latter is numbered among the most popular members of the debutante set in the Missouri city. Among the highlights, and there were many of them, which have featured

Laura's visit was the attendance at the performance of the Yale Dramatic Club which is always one of the gayest events of the year there.

Laura returns home tomorrow and although there is no definite news of a forthcoming visit here of her present hostess, it is almost a certainty that the lovely St. Louis belle will make another of her visits here with her cousin, Laura. She has visited here several times in the past and has a wide circle of admiring friends here. Her popularity here is only rivaled by that which she enjoys in her native city, which was further emphasized during the past fall when she was one of the eight belles chosen as maids at the famous Veiled Prophets Ball, which is one of the highest honors accorded a St. Louis girl.

ATLANTA society was represented last evening at the Men's Cotillion Club ball given in Chattanooga by Elinor Smith. The Atlanta belle went to Chattanooga at the invitation of Dr. and Mrs. Garnett Austin. Mrs. Austin, as you know, is the former Harriett Ann Baylor, of this city. She and Elinor are lifelong friends, and when Harriett became the bride of the Chattanooga physician last June Elinor was an attendant in the wedding.

For last evening's ball Elinor chose to wear a stunning creation of floral printed satin. Clusters of pastel-shaded flowers woven on a background of white satin emphasized the Atlanta's exquisite blond beauty accentuated by a bandeau of rhinestones worn through her golden tresses.

Elinor returns home Thursday in time to attend the ball to be given that evening at the Piedmont Driving Club by the Girls' Cotillion Club of which Elinor's sister, Joyce, is president.

Miss Laura Hill Is Presented At Club Reception and Ball

MISS LAURA HILL.

The Piedmont Driving Club was transformed into a brilliant Christmas scene last evening for the ball at which Miss Laura Hill, beautiful debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hill, was formally presented to the unmarried members of Atlanta society.

The several hundred guests entered the ballroom through a glistening avenue of white Christmas trees strung with golden lights and placed in the foyer of the club. Similar Christmas trees were placed on either side of the entrance to the beautiful ballroom and the columns ranging the length of the room were wrapped with gold. A cluster of white calla lilies was caught to the top of each column with a huge bow of silver cellophane, and larger silver bows festooned the columns. These bows were garlanded with smilax and a profusion of smilax formed an impressive background for the Christmas trees.

The long buffet supper table in the foyer of the club further carried out the decorative motif of silver and gold. A large silver bowl of yellow calla lilies flanked on either side with old Georgian candelabra holding lighted yellow tapers formed the center decorations for the table. Silver punch bowls banked with yellow callas and Roman hyacinths were placed on either end of the table. Those assisting in entertaining were served in the lounge of the club which was beautifully decorated with calla lilies.

Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Hill and Miss Hill were Miss Margaret Chenoweth, of Birmingham, Ala., and Miss Helen Swift, of Columbus, Ga., schoolmates of Miss Hill in Washington and New York. The group stood before the fire place at the far end of the ballroom in front of a large Christmas tree strung with yellow lights. On either side of the tree was a large basket of yellow calla lilies and the beautiful floral tributes sent to the attractive debutante by her many admirers.

Miss Hill was becomingly gowned in light blue slipper satin fashioned with a tightly fitted bodice shirred at the waistline to the very full skirt. She wore a cluster of white orchids on her shoulder and carried white calla lilies. In her hair was a band of white bouvardia and valley lilies. Mrs. Hill wore a handsome model of white satin embroidered with rhinestones and crystal beads in a rose design. Her flowers were purple orchids.

Miss Swift chose for the occasion a dress of pink net made along bouffant lines and finished at the shoulder with lavender orchids. Miss Chenoweth was gowned in light blue chiffon featuring a draped bodice and her flowers were lavender orchids.

Immediately following intermission Miss Hill led a cotillion figure with Thomas B. Paine. Large horns filled with confetti were given as favors, and as extra favors the girls received old-fashioned nosegays of flowers. Varicolored paper spirals were distributed to the guests, and when thrown over wires across the ballroom, lent a festive air to the decorations.

Assisting the hosts in the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. John Sanford, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. William Akers, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Paine, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kitchings, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hoyt, and Mr. and Mrs. William Perkinson.

Members of Atlanta's married contingent assembled at a reception in the afternoon, to meet the lovely debutante.

Assisting in the afternoon were Mesdames Edgar Neely, William Akers, William Perkinson, Gordon Burnett, R. M. Callaway, Mitchell Fowberg, William Hynds, Rufus C. Darby, Edward Daniel, Guy Woodford, George Bland, Earl Cone, F. A. Kalkbush, Harrison Atkins, Lee Edwards, Harrison Hines, John E. Smith, Fred Hoyt, Robert Crumley, Robert Reid and Sam Harrison.

Miss Catherine Cunningham Weds Rev. Richards at Decatur Church

Miss Catherine Russell Cunningham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown Cunningham Sr., of Decatur, became the bride of Rev. John Edwards Richards, of Liberty Hill, S. C., and Waynesboro, Ga., at an afternoon ceremony solemnized yesterday at 5:30 o'clock at the Decatur Presbyterian church.

Dr. C. M. Richards, of Davidson College, N. C., assisted by Dr. D. McGeehy, officiated in the presence of relatives and friends. C. W. Diekmann presented a musical program, accompanied by Mrs. Henry Robinson and Miss Florence Smith, violinists.

Palms and ferns banked the altar, with seven-branched candelabra holding white tapers placed at intervals. A floor basket of white cysanthemums centered the effective decorations.

The ushers included Rev. J. K. Parker, of Valden, Miss.; Rev. Arnold Fale, of Jonesboro, N. C.; Rev. Eugene Daniel, of Jackson, and Rev. Cecil Thompson, of Menlo.

The bride chose for her maid of honor and only attendant Miss Copie McCrary, of Clinton, S. C. She wore a floor length model of least brown moire, fashioned with a brief jacket and puffed sleeves. She carried a bouquet of tall-moss roses.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Robert B. Cunningham Sr., and they were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Hon. J. P. Richards, of Lancaster, S. C., and Washington, District of Columbia.

The bride was lovely in her wedding gown of white silk moire, fashioned with a high neck line and trimmed with a cluster of white velvet flowers. The sleeves were full at the shoulder and fitted snugly over the hand. The skirt flared below the knees into a brief train. Her fingertip veil of tulle was held to her hair with a small cap and clusters of orange blossoms. She carried a nose gay of bride's roses.

Rev. Richards and his bride left for a wedding trip after which they will be at home in Waynesboro. For traveling Mrs. Richards chose a brown wool ensemble with brown accessories.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. N. S. Richards, Miss Edith and Eighteen Richards, of Liberty Hill, S. C.; Mrs. Eldrid Cayce, of Columbia, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Cunningham Jr. and family of Columbia, S. C.; Mr. and Mrs. James Crawford, of Nashville, Tenn.

New Bath Preparations Appearing in Exciting-Looking Packages

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK CITY, Monday.—We had a most successful Christmas party at Hyde Park yesterday afternoon. They seem to grow bigger every year. This year we had one guest who really wanted to come, for she came on an errand and then inquired if she might stay on. The children behaved very well and the Christmas carols were sung with great spirit by everyone.

When it came to ice cream and cake, I thought I had so much cake on hand that we could never eat it all, but we served more than a hundred people and when it was over I had no more ice cream and about a quarter of one layer cake left. I decided that next year I must count on more people and remember that children grow up and eat more and more.

One little girl amused me a great deal. She kept running in and out and stopped in front of some older person and held out her hand and said solemnly: "Merry Christmas to you." Before the afternoon was over, I think she had said her own personal "Merry Christmas" to every older person in the group.

My mother-in-law, with whom I spent a half an hour after lunch, motored down to Newburgh to greet her sister, Mrs. Forbes, who had just arrived from France on her yearly visit. She is over 80 now, but continues her annual trips across the ocean and is still one of the most charming, intelligent and attractive women I have ever known. I say a little prayer every now and then that I will be able to keep my interest in life and make as much of a contribution to the enjoyment of other people in the course of the next 10 years, let alone 30, as she still does.

With great reluctance I left the peace and quietness of the country this morning. It was a glorious day and I enjoyed looking out from the window as we came down on the train. One gentleman from Rhinebeck stopped by my seat to give me a message for the President, then a strange lady came and sat beside me. Having introduced herself, she asked about Dr. Cushing, whom she adores, as he once saved her life.

Doctors must accumulate grateful people everywhere and I often wonder if they are surprised or disturbed when one pops up suddenly, and says: "Ten years ago you saved my life," and they can't remember the patient's name. But perhaps they always do! At 12 o'clock I visited the Harlem Community Art Center, at 290 Lenox avenue, just below 125th street. I was deeply interested in this WPA art project. They have a teachers' institute, where teachers from the five boroughs of the city of New York may come to improve their artistic education. Of course, this center is for the use of school children and 400 of them are already registered. The gallery will have exhibitions which will change once a month. I think we have here a most interesting addition to the cultural life of Harlem and the city in general.

Your Figure, Madam

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

EXERCISE FOR A BEAUTIFUL THROAT.

The combined artistry of the hairdress and the neckline can create the illusion of a beautiful throat.

Let's take a critical but constructive view of that fragile line from the tip of the chin to the dimple in the throat. Unless you are a designer, you do not analyze the dominating effect of lines, but the eye is quicker than the mind and lines can shorten or lengthen or soften angles. If your neck is too long, too short, too thick, or too thin, the world need never know it.

The conspicuously long neck can be made to appear shorter by wearing the hair fairly low and the collar high. The V-shaped neck, which accentuates length, should be avoided. The lines most flattering are the boat-shape, or the square or round neck. When the throat is too thin, frills or folds soften angles and enhance the neckline.

To give length to the short, thick neck, do not have the hair too long, and it may be attractive swept up from the temples and the nape of the neck. The V neckline does wonders toward giving the effect of length and the U neck is also very good. With a short, thick neck, one should never wear a high collar or one cut perfectly round or square.

each month can bring that fragile, easily lost line closer to loveliness.

Suit dress and collar to the length of your neck.

And, by the way, to minimize a double chin . . . avoid highlighting it by wearing white collars directly underneath.

You can make the illusion of a beautiful throat come true with exercise. Miracles can be accomplished toward rounding out the too-thin throat as well as banishing a double chin.

The column of the throat is composed of muscles and unless these muscles are used the throat contour is likely to be either thin and scraggly or—equally objectionable—fat and scalloped. The secret of the well-rounded, clearly defined throatline is not in fat padding, but in good musculature, which may be developed through consistent exercise.

Any measure which stimulates circulation will aid in improving the throatline. Brisk rubbing with a rough towel, daily use of a flesh brush and slapping cold water under the chin every morning are all helpful in arousing the circulation and in beautifying the throat.

Such measures, however, are secondary to exercise, which is an absolute necessity if the muscles of the throat are to be maintained in full tone and vigor. Go to work on your throatline with the exercises in the leaflet, "Let's Chin Awhile," for exercise is the foundation of beautiful contour.

You cannot expect to change your throatline overnight, but

HEALTH TALKS

MANIFESTATIONS OF CHRONIC OXYGEN DEFICIT.

Besides headache, the anoxia or oxygen deficit due to frequent mild gassing with carbon monoxide or to daily exposure to small but definite admixtures of the colorless, odorless, tasteless gas with air, may give rise to some other signs or symptoms which are often wrongly attributed to "neurasthenia," "run-down condition," "overwork," "fatigue" and the like—vague and seldom satisfactory explanations for any impairment of health. Yes, and even "indigestion"—but let us waive the question of "indigestion" here—suffice to say that no such state or malady is recognized in pathology, no matter how many pages of common sense consideration the publicity man of the big clinic prints about it.

Langour, strange unaccountable languor in one who is not ordinarily subject to it and has done nothing to warrant it, may well arouse suspicion of chronic anoxia, whether from carbon monoxide gassing or from altitude or from any other interference with the vital oxidation process of life. The languor of CO anoxia is commonly associated with a pallor, but although the individual looks anemic, examination of the blood usually reveals, instead of a reduction in the number of red corpuscles, an actual increase in their number above the normal together with a corresponding increase in the iron coloring matter, the hemoglobin, from the normal 90 per cent or more to 100 or 110 per cent, as hemoglobin is measured by the clinical test.

Anorexia (a two dollar word for lack of appetite or poor appetite) is a familiar manifestation or complaint of persons suffering from carbon monoxide anoxia. When this is accompanied with actual nausea at times, the victim is likely to conclude he has some kind of "indisposition" and to blame the food, the cooking, his nerves, worry over business matters, domestic responsibilities and so on.

If exposure to carbon monoxide is habitual or frequent, say incidental to employment or bad conditions in the home, notwithstanding the characteristic pallor, the pale skin becomes strikingly flushed at times and with this feverish flushing there is more or less mental confusion or irritability and a vague sense of alarm.

It is my conjecture, take it or leave it, that anoxia, whether from carbon monoxide gassing or from other cause, is the real pathological state in a good many cases at present ticketed "neurasthenia." According to the old masters, the old timers I call 'em, who conceived and for a generation successfully upheld the theory of "neurasthenia" or "weak nerves," the distinctive symptom was quick fatigability. That, I believe, is the very first manifestation of anoxia. Physiologists have found that brain tissue is more sensitive to any deficit of oxygen. So I wonder, just wonder, whether deficiency in the supply of or the absorption and utilization of oxygen is not the prime factor in most cases of so-called "weak nerves." And I wonder, just wonder, whether the lack of vitamin B in the average American diet is not the explanation for the anoxia in many cases where neither carbon monoxide nor altitude can be concerned.

Colognes and Perfume in Bottles That "Dress Up" Anyone's Boudoir

By LILLIAN MAE.

From the looks of the bath preparations on toiletry counters recently it seems as though bottles have sneaked off the bar and nestled in amongst the cosmetics when all backs were turned. One charming example, literally speaking, is a charming round wine decanter used to contain a new cologne.

It looks ever so delectable—dark as pitch at a glance, its neck swathed in white kid and the silver cords which bind it securely are sealed snugly against the bottle with two red wax seals. When the bottle is held up to the light, it glows with exquisitely clear translucent green light.

This is a real cologne scent, as fresh and fragrant as a spring morning, and ever so refreshing after the bath. Its exciting package makes this eau de cologne look lots more expensive.

Another cosmetic firm, famous for its limited edition perfumes, makes headline news with its latest package. This new set, making its debut for Christmas, comes in a beautiful velvet-finish package using as its color scheme, white and a deep red, two outstanding carnation colors to tie up with the carnation perfume it contains.

The set consists of a one-ounce pyramid-shaped bottle of perfume, a bottle of refreshing cologne in a slender-necked bottle with rounded base, and five little white sachets, daintily fringed and bordered with red saddle stitching, and sells for $7.50.

The carnation perfume, which in its individual package sells for $5, is sweetly and spicily fragrant with a permeating quality reminiscent of the beauty and delicate aura of the blossoms.

N. Y. Dedicates Mid-Town Tube To New Jersey

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP)—A giant new link in Manhattan's $500,000,000 underground traffic system opened to traffic today with formal dedication of the first tube of the $85,000,000 two-way Lincoln tunnel from midtown New York to New Jersey.

Sunk deep under the Hudson River, the new motor vehicle tube is destined to hook up with a $26,785,000 cross-town tunnel beneath the heart of the Times Square district to relieve surface traffic congestion. An estimated 10,000,000 motor cars will pass through the tunnel in the next 12 months.

Aerial bombs, sirens and harbor traffic whistles saluted the completion of the project as Governor Herbert H. Lehman, of New York; Governor Harold G. Hoffman, of New Jersey; Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes, Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia and Postmaster General James A. Farley, among other notables, hailed the event.

Miss Armistead Becomes Bride Of Mr. Evans at Church Ceremony

Miss Mary Esther Armistead, daughter of Dr. E. K. Armistead, of El Paso, Texas, and Mrs. E. J. English, became the bride of Lou Allen Evans at a brilliant ceremony taking place at 8 o'clock last evening at Druid Hills Baptist church. Dr. Louie D. Newton officiated in the presence of relatives and a large group of friends.

A graceful arrangement of state palms, ferns and smilax formed the background for the altar decorations, in the center of which was placed an arch formed of burning tapers surrounding a round of Easter lilies. Twenty-five branched candelabra holding white tapers flanked each side of the altar, and asparagus ferns entwined around the candelabra.

The altar rails were covered in white crash and garlanded with smilax, and the family pews and places for members of the bride's sororities, the Beta Phi Alpha and Delta Sigma were marked with white tulle bows.

Bridal Personnel.

The musical program rendered at the organ by Mrs. John Fenton and Marcus Lester sang, "I Love You Truly," and "O Promise Me." Jim Evans, brother of the groom, was best man, and Dr. E. K. Armistead gave his daughter in marriage. Groomsmen were Ray Barnes, Edd Lovett, Trenton Allen, Roy Gatchell, F. N. Prince and John Pack.

Ushers included H. L. Smith, T. N. Castle, W. R. Thomas and B. E.

Goodman. Mrs. Edd Lovett and Mrs. Marcus Lester were matrons of honor, and bridesmaids were Misses Virginia Tuggle, Sara Adcock, Amaryllis Pickett, Marguerite Wright, Birdie Mae Baker and Margaret Mitchell.

Black and white was effectively featured in the Armistead-Evans wedding. The matrons of honor and bridesmaids were gowned alike in models of black velvet, fashioned with high waistline, the short and puffed sleeves were trimmed with small white gardenias. The bodices were finished with a heart neckline. The skirts were very full and ended in short train and they wore wreaths of gardenias in their hair, and their bouquets were of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Radiantly Lovely Bride.

The bride entered with her father who gave her in marriage and she was radiantly lovely in her wedding dress of heavy white satin, fashioned on princess lines with a high waistline, and introducing a square neckline in the back of the bodice. The front neckline was high and the sleeves had the accentuated broad shoulders, and were fitted below the elbow into a point over the hand with tiny covered buttons at the wrist. The full skirt had the long train built in from the waistline in the back and extended in graceful folds.

The bride's tulle veil, which extended over the train, was fashioned with princess lace, and was caught to her hair in the back of her coronet which was studded with pearls. She carried a handkerchief of exquisite duchess lace and her bouquet was of gardenias and valley lilies.

Mrs. E. J. English, mother of the bride, was gowned in gold lace made with a V-neckline trimmed with rhinestones clips at the neck. Her flowers were purple orchids. Mrs. L. C. Evans, mother of the groom, wore a model of coronation blue velvet with high waist line and full skirt. Her shoulder spray was of purple orchids.

After the ceremony at the church, Dr. E. K. Armistead was host at a reception at the Ansley hotel attended only by the wedding party, the relatives, and out-of-town guests. Receiving with the host were the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Evans, Mrs. E. J. English, the bride's mother, and members of the bridal party. Assisting in entertaining were Misses Amaryllis Pickett, Virginia Tuggle, Mesdames Edd Lovett and Marcus Lester.

Leave for Kentucky.

Mr. Evans and his bride left for their wedding trip to Owensboro, Ky., to visit the bride's grandmother, Mrs. M. A. Armistead and from there they will motor through Ohio before returning to Atlanta. The bride traveled in a tailored blouse suit worn with a white blouse. Her smart black hat was an off-face model trimmed with a flaring veil and she wore black suede accessories and white orchids. Upon their return from their wedding trip they will reside temporarily at the Bonaventure Arms on Ponce de Leon.

On either side of the altar were seven-branched candelabra in which gleamed slender white tapers, and in the center of the altar was a graceful basket filled with Easter lilies. Ropes of smilax and sprays of asparagus fern garlanded the sides of the altar. Floor standards of Easter lilies and long leaf palm plants added to the beauty of the decorations of the church.

Remember That Night

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

When Karen Mallard's foster-mother dies she decides to quit her dress shop job and go to New York to marry her ambition to be an actress. Jerry Forbes, who came to Harrison to work in his uncle's bank, begs her to marry him. She asks if he knows her story. When she was six months old her mother, a young actress in a company that disbanded in Harrison, took a midnight train, leaving Karen in a hotel room. John and Betty Mallard adopted the pretty child and cheerfully planned to keep the pretty child in school and give her singing and dancing lessons. Jerry wishes her luck and says he'll be waiting "if you need me." Her neighbor in New York is blond Roxanne Dell, who sings on a hotel roof. She is hard on the surface but Karen likes her. As Karen is leaving a theater after seeing the famous Brenda Bond in Philip Ashley's play, her handbag containing all her money falls to the lobby, and is kicked about. A handsome man returns it. He waits in the rain for a bus his car stops and she amazes herself by accepting his invitation to get in. He is Philip Ashley. He takes her to a party to meet Brenda Bond. She hears a woman's remark about Ashley's picking up girls while Lillian Kane is in London and leaves. Philip apologizes as he drives her home; she knows that she loves him. She goes with Roxanne and her fiancé Bill McGrath to the hotel roof where Philip sees her and dances with her. McGrath disappears from a ship. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XI.

But Philip was thinking of Karen, thinking her lovely, wondering if Tommy had mentioned Tappan to her, wondering if Tommy had kissed her, and of a secret that was not a secret in Harrison.

"It's odd how we ran into each other," he said at last. "But some of the nicest things that ever happen to us come about through coincidence. Most romances begin that way."

"With one hand he steered the car and with the other he lit a cigarette. And in the brief flame he turned her head and looked at him the same instant he looked at her. Then he switched off the lighter and they were in the dark again."

"You're young and very beautiful, Karen," Philip said. So beautiful that in an unguarded moment he had wanted terribly to kiss her. "What does love mean to you?"

After a while she said, looking ahead at the road, "Everything. It means more than being famous as an actress. I know that now."

Thoughts never spoken before were said to Philip now because she loved him. "People in love make so many mistakes blindly. They don't mean to. They kill the very thing they're trying to keep alive. Sometimes you love a person your imagination creates. Then some people let their love become commonplace. But love is like a flower that has taken years to cultivate. If you give it fresh earth and sunshine and water and don't let weeds choke it, it will live. But it needs attention."

She did not dare look at him. "I suppose you are laughing at me again. A small-town girl telling a famous play-wright..."

"If you'll look at me, you'll see I'm not laughing," Philip said soberly. "You have nice thoughts, Karen. Keep them. Hold on to them."

"What does love mean to you?" "I can't add anything to what you said. You made the words and the music."

You made the words and music. The tears sprang to her eyes. Tommy's sumptuous house on Long Island was ablaze with lights. Cars were parked in long lines in the driveway. More than a hundred guests sat around white tables on the green terrace, glasses in hand, watching two servants light the fireworks beside the swimming pool. Inside in the ballroom an orchestra played softly.

Tommy, seeing Philip's green car, signaled to the men to stop the fireworks and hurried down the terrace to the car. Then his guests turned their attentions from the pool to the car and its two occupants.

"I thought you'd never come," Tommy said, thrusting his blond head inside the car.

"We work," Philip said. "You wouldn't know about that." "Now we'll shoot the works," he smiled at Karen. "Your nose doesn't need any powder but if you think so, it's the first door to your right upstairs."

Between them she walked to the house and went inside, wondering why every one looked at her curiously, not realizing that to be seen with Tommy once was to be traveled fast, and not knowing that Tommy's guests had good reason to be curious about her.

She wished that she had not come and that she and Philip might have ridden side by side forever. Sitting on a little bench before a dressing table upon which many kinds of powder had been spilled, she felt an exquisite wave of happiness. Philip. . . . For an instant, he had been conscious of her. For an instant his eyes had desired her. But he had put out the flame and they had been in darkness again.

Coming out, her lovely dress billowing in the breeze, she was conscious of the sudden hush of voices. Philip, conscious of it, too, went to her. There was something in the air he didn't know.

Tommy joined them and signaled to the men to stop the fireworks and hurried down the terrace to the car. Then his guests turned their attentions from the pool to the car and its two occupants.

UNCLE RAY'S Corner

A STONE AGE TEMPLE.

Thirty-five years ago, some workmen were digging a well in Malta when one of them felt the ground give way beneath his feet. He dropped some distance, but was not much hurt, and was able to crawl out.

What was the cause of that fall? A hollow under the ground—a hollow made 5,000 years ago or more!

Men of science heard that an underground rock chamber had been found, and came to the spot to learn more about it. Digging and exploring went on for years, and the final result was to make it possible to see a wonder of the late Stone Age.

Skeletons in great numbers were found. Most of the bones were crushed, but about a dozen skulls were in good condition. When measured, they proved to be like those of people who lived stone scrapers, also sling-stones and stone mallets.

Ornaments of many kinds were dug up. They included shell beads and animal teeth which had been carved in special shapes.

To reach the Hypogeum, as this place is known, I made a motor trip from Valletta. Going down a modern stairway, I found myself in an underground chamber.

"This chamber," said my guide, "was carved in the rock by people of the late Stone Age. They did not have a single metal tool, and it is a wonder they were able to cut the rock with the tools they did have."

Going through a passage, I entered another room of the same kind, and then another. There are more than a dozen rooms and halls in this underground place. One room is 10 feet wide and 25 feet long.

After we reached a room with a high ceiling, the guide said: "Before the Hypogeum was used as a burial place, it is believed to have been an underground temple. This room appears to have been a chapel in which sacrifices were offered to the gods."

Statues made of stone and clay were found in the Hypogeum. It is supposed they are images of gods and goddesses worshipped there. If this be true, the late Stone Age folk made their gods and goddesses look very "fat."

AVERAGE PRICE.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 21.—(P)—The advance in cotton was extended further today. March rose from 8.39 to 8.45 and closed at 8.41, with final prices 4 to 8 points net higher.

The market opened 1 to 7 points higher in sympathy with firmness at Liverpool and Bombay and on buying from overseas.

For best prices for the day, representing net gain of 7 to 11 points, were established in early trading.

After foreign markets had closed demand tapered off somewhat and a little profit-taking was attracted by the May advance to a point above the 8 1/2-2-cent level.

Spot houses reported a slight improvement in demand for the season. Exports today 47,258, making a total of 3,117,577 for the season thus far. Port receipts 34,516; United States port stocks 3,263,197.

TARZAN UNDER FIRE

No. 57

Gulm, the high priest of the sun-worshippers, decided against pursuit of the elusive bowman, for he did not wish to risk losing any more of his followers. But as he considered the problem, his red-rimmed, savage eyes fell upon Up, whom he hated bitterly.

He would be pleased to be rid of Up, and now he decided how it might be done. "Up!" he commanded. "Come here! You lied to me when you said the flaming G came in the night and took our little high priestess away. You lied, Up, and you shall die for it!"

"I did not lie," the other declared solemnly; "the flaming G did come and take her away. But he brought her back, and with her sent two sacrifices. It is your fault that you captured only one of them. If you had captured both, this would not have happened."

"Very well," grinned Gulm; "you shall walk behind and capture the other sacrifice, if he returns." Again the march of the beast-men was resumed, and behind them, through the trees, moved Doc, the relentless stalker, again braving the power and fury of his foes.

COURT PLEA LOST BY MRS. REDFERN

Judge Refuses To Declare Aviator Legally Dead.

DETROIT, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Probate Judge Edward Command denied today a petition by Mrs. Gertrude S. Redfern asking the court to declare her aviator husband, Paul Redfern, legally dead.

The petition was denied on the grounds that the court does not have jurisdiction. Mrs. Redfern's attorney, Karl E. Scott, said he would file a chancery suit in the Wayne county circuit court asking the same determination.

In her petition Mrs. Redfern said she and the aviator were married January 6, 1925, in Toledo, Ohio.

Redfern has been missing since August 26, 1927, on an attempted nonstop flight from Brunswick, Ga., to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

LAWMAKER SPIKES 'JUNKET' BY SOLONS

House Leader Sees No Need of 'Inspection' at Time of Game.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Chairman Taylor, Democrat, Colorado, said that he would use his "veto power" as head of the house appropriation committee to prevent a subcommittee from making a Christmas holiday investigation of Pacific coast military defenses "so they can see a football game at public expense."

Taylor said he telegraphed Representative Snyder, Democrat, Pennsylvania, at his Altoona home, suggesting postponement of the trip. Taylor said he advised Snyder that Representative Taber, of New York, ranking Republican member of the committee, and "some newspapers" had "criticized this idea of congressmen going to see the Rose Bowl game at public expense."

Taylor said he informed Snyder the appropriations committee adopted a regulation requiring its chairman to approve inspection trips. He said his approval had not been sought, and said he notified Snyder he was "not inclined to give it because of the criticism of the proposed trip."

N. J. Jackson Dinner

Set at $5 Per Plate
NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 21.—(AP) New Jersey's Jackson Day dinner will cost $5 a plate—not the $25 which the Democratic national committee hoped would be the uniform price throughout the nation.

The state committee announced today Colonel William H. Kelly, acting state Democratic chairman, and Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, state leader and national committee member, refused to sponsor a $25-a-plate affair.

The announcement said the New Jersey leaders received permission a few days ago to proceed with their $5 dinner, on January 8.
